WASHINGTON (AP) — A proposed voluntary association of House members would provide an outlet for women employes who want to complain about hugging, kissing and pinching by their bosses, a Colorado congresswoman said Friday.

Democratic Rep. Patricia Schroeder, joined by Rep. Charles Rose, D-N.C., said they will ask their colleagues to sign up for the Employe Rights Committee. Mrs. Schroeder said it would give a young woman employe a place to take a complaint she might have against her boss.

"MANY YOUNG staff women" complain to her about what they feel are problems with their bosses because they don't have anywhere to go," Mrs. Schroeder said.

She gave as an example the former Doorkeeper of the House William "Fishbait" Miller, who she said often went around "grabbing and pinching and kissing them — me too.

She said she would tell him, "Fishbait, that may have been how you did things years ago but that's not the way it's done now.

"IT PROBABLY wasn't intentional" on his part, she said, but more of a generation gap problem between older members of the House who don't know how to handle a one-to-one relationship with young women professionals.

Mrs. Schroeder and Rose said their effort, which they will take to their colleagues at a meeting Tuesday, would be just a start to overcome working conditions that offer Capitol Hill employes little in the way of job rights.

THOSE WHO voluntarily join the group would be subject to binding arbitration on employe grievances that are not resolved before that point.

The committee was endorsed earlier Friday by the Capitol Hill Women's Caucus.

Howe says he won't resign

Howe said Friday that talking to two decoy prostitutes was a "most foolish mistake," but he said he did not try to buy sex from them and he will not resign from the House.

Howe said he will seek re-election and "I suspect there will be many people who will rally to my cause."

The 48-year-old Utah Democrat said his re-elec-tion bid "will be a most difficult thing," but he added,"I am simply and without equivocation innocent of these charges.'

Howe has said he went to the area, which is known for prostitution, because a man said a car would lead him to a political function. The decoys were in a car when he talked to them.

"I certainly regard that now as a most foolish mistake," Howe said.

HOWE'S WIFE Marlene and their five children appeared with him at the news conference. Mrs. Howe told reporters: "I am married to a very great man. I love him very much and believe him innocent."

Food-stamp cuts stopped

Combined News Services

WASHINGTON - The Ford administration was enjoined by a federal judge Briday from putting into effect regulaitions that would eliminate about 1.29 million families from the food stamp program. U.S. District Judge John Lewis Smith Jr. said "hunger and deprivation imight result" from the changes planned by the administration. The preliminary Injunction means an indefinite delay in the administration's plan to change the $5.7-billion program in a way designed to billion in annual savings. The President said the program, which serves 5.8 million families, gives benefits to too many that don't need them, doesn't give enough to households that do need them and costs the taxpayers too much.

Tomb to be unsealed

LOUISVILLE, Ky. - Scotia Coal Co.'s No. 1 Black Mountain mine, where 11 men lie entombed in the dark shafts, will be unsealed July 14, federal mine officials told relatives of the victims on Friday. But the officials said it will take at least 60 days to make the mine safe enough to remove the bodies. The mine was wracked by explosions last March. Twenty-six men were killed, but only 15 bodies were recovered. Fifteen men were killed in the first explosion on March 9. Those bodies were recovered. When a 13man work crew went into the shaft on the hight of March 11, another explosion rocked the mine. Only two escaped.

NEW ORLEANS - The fact that two Cambulances exploded in flames within minutes of each other has prompted a Inationwide alert from the company that makes the vehicles. Edward Talty, vice president of Sheller-Globe Corp. of Toledo, Ohio, said the company has asked owners of all their ambulances to have the gas tanks checked immediately. It is not a recall, Talty said, but an alert.

Honor investigation

WASHINGTON - The chairman of the House Armed Services Committee has called for a blue-ribbon investigation of the honor code at West Point and the nation's two other service academies. Rep. Melvin Price, D-III., asked for the investigation in a letter to Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld. He urged that a panel be formed from academic, legal and military communities.

Strike threat

BOSTON - The Massachusetts Labor Relations Board Friday refused to step in to stop a threatened strike by 50,000 of the state's 65,000 employes. Negotiations between the state and the union, the Alliance, have been stalled for three months. The state's offer of a 5 per centa-year increase over three years has been rejected. The union is demanding increases totaling 21 per cent for a two-year contract. In his decision, the chairman of the state Labor Relations Commission said the state had not presented sufficient evidence to document its claim union leaders illegally encouraged and planned a work stoppage.

Salmon fishing ban

PORTLAND, Ore. - A federal judge again has ordered the State of Washington to ban commercial salmon fishing off its coast until July 1. But the new order, issued late Friday by Judge Robert Belloni of U.S. District Court, gives the state until 5 p.m. Monday to appeal. The order doesn't take effect until that time. The judge said he may extend the ordered closure beyond July I to make up for the days lost during the appeal period. Belloni issued the injunction after an attorney representing the State of Washington tried unsuccessfully to convince the judge that the closure would not be necessary to protect salmon runs in the Columbia

No refund

A friend of mine rented an apartment from California Real Estate Investment, 336 E. 17th St., Costa Mesa, in November and paid $125 for the first month's rent, $125 for the last month and a $50 cleaning fee. He was to move in four days later, but when the time came he was told the girl who was living there was still occupying it. A few days later a representative of the investment firm said she couldn't tell him when he could move in. He asked for a refund and was told if he paid for the newspaper ad for the apartment she would mail him the balance of his money. On Dec. 8 he was told the firm was charging him for 42 days' rent plus the cost of running an ad for 42 days. The total was $254.94. He hasn't even received a refund for the balance of his $300. He speaks very little English and needs your help. M.D.,

We weren't able to help. Jim Mains of California Real Estate denied that the apartment was occupied when your friend was due to move in. He said only cleaning supplies were there and that he took your friend through the apartment to show him it was vacant. He said your friend changed his mind about renting the apartment, so his firm was justified in charging rent for 42 days and for the newspaper ads because they "turned down 14 people who were told the place was rented." He also promised to refund the $50 cleaning fee your friend paid. In spite of several more calls from Action Line, your your friend never got any money back. He might wish to pursue the matter through small claims court.

Penn Central stock

I formerly owned 100 shares of Penn Central Railroad stock which I sold in 1972, and needless to say, took a bit of a bath. In August, I received a batch of legal forms from the U.S. District Court in Philadelphia and a letter stating that if I could prove I once owned the stock, I would be entitled to a share in a settlement from a class action suit. I was told that if I didn't qualify, I a crass action suit. I was told that it i don't qualify, I would be notified by Dec. 30. I have heard nothing more and my letters to the court have gone unanswered. Can Action Line find out why happened to the settlement. I Jigure my losses amounted to about $6,000. J.M., Long

The disbursement of funds to Penn Central stockholders who filed claims before last October's deadline is still a long way off, according to a spokesman for the U.S. District Court. The settlement was reached in a class action lawsuit filed on behalf of shareholders who alleged that Penn Central's executives mislead investors about the firm's financial position. Penn Central, which was formed in 1968 by the merger of the Pennsylvania and New York Central Railroads, collapsed financially in 1970, and most of the firm's assets are still tied up in bankruptcy litigation. "It will take us months to sort through the thousands of claims and determine the prorated settlement for each one and I can't predict when this will be completed, but all of the claimants will be notified when we're ready to disburse the funds," the court spokesman said.

Business in babies booming

From Our L.A. Bureau

County supervisors were warned Friday of a critical overload of obstetrical patients at county hospitals. Health Services Director Liston Witherill said the number of women hav-ing babies has been far in excess of budgeted bed ca-pacity at County-USC Medical Center for the past few weeks.

As of Friday, he said, the patient count at the women's unit totaled 446 while there were only 335 budgeted beds. At Harbor General Hospital there were 151 patients with a bed capacity of 121 and at Martin Luther King Hospital there were 129 patients with a 124-bed capacity.

Witherill said officials have had to step up recrultment of nursing and midwifery personnel as well as transferring obstetrical patients to other wards.

Additionally. county hospitals were instructed to begin a program of discharging patients as early as possible, and county pa-ramedics were brought in to transfer some of the patients to other county hospitals.

Orange County made County-mayor debate on agenda

Supervisors Friday con-firmed they would debate the issue of a ballot measure for an elected county mayor Monday despite a last-minute attack by Supervisor James Hayes.

Hayes Friday released to the press a letter he had written to Board Chair-man Baxter Ward berating his colleagues for agreeing to deal with the county-mayor issue during the heighth of budget

Hayes said the mayor issue would "sidetrack our attention" from critical budget discussion and said the move in his judgment would be "an obscene insuit to the people of this county.

In the letter he accused Supervisors Kenneth Hahn and Ed Edelman of scheduling the mayor issue for Monday "in an effort to sneak it through during budget delibera-tions." Hayes said the issue could easily be put over to Monday, July 5, or shortly thereafter when all supervisors could consider the matter in a more deliberate manner.

He stressed that the hoard has until Aug. 20— the legal deadline for plac-ing any issue on the Nov. 2

Hayes left the budget hearing session in midafternoon and at the close of the hearing Hahn and Edelman publicly lashed back at Hayes for releasing his letter to the press. Edelman said he was

"frankly very disappointed" with Hayes' letter, saying that the matter of the county mayor had been publicized all along the way. He said he, as chairman pro-tem, had set the discussion for 10:30 a.m. Monday, because he and Hahn believed it was important to get the issue out of the way before the major budget delibera-

Said Edelman, "I resent the idea that we are trying to sneak anything through. It seems to be a cheap political shot to try in some way to sabotage the efforts at county reform."

Hahn went along with Edelman, adding Hayes' letter "hits below the belt." He pointed out that the July 5 date suggested by Hayes was a legal holi-day and that the board would not even be meeting.

The proposed ballot measure would amend the County Charter to sepa-rate the executive and legislative functions now vested in the five-man board. If the voters approve the measure the elected county mayor would handle executive functions while supervi-sors would assume a pure ly legislative role.

A companion measure seeks to expand the size of the board from five to nine

Probe ousts Ford guard

A Secret Service agent who occasionally guarded President Ford has been fired following an investigation into missing Treasury Department ammunition later found in the possession of a convicted murderer.

The dismissal of agent Fred Nagel of Los Alamitos came as a "result of an investigation of missing ammunition," said Robert Powis, chief of the Secret Service office here.

Powis refused further

There is no indication that the stolen ammunition was used in the two murders, but is believed to have been sold at various local gun shops.

Waissman, a former doorman and bouncer at the Playgirl Club in Garden Grove, was one of three men convicted in the murder of Treasury De-partment informant John Gressmann and security guard Norman Olsey, both of whom were part-time employes at the nightclub.

The other two convicted in the case were Donald Blansett, the former club manager, and Marine Sgt. was taken to Waissman by California Highway Pa

Machine gun stolen from Secret Service

NEWPORT BEACH (AP) — Secret Service agents guarding President Ford's son Steve as he dined at a beach city restaurant earlier this year had a machine gun stolen from the trunk of a car, according to the Santa Ana Register. The Israeli designed Uzi machine pistol apparently was taken from the car while it was parked at Bobby McGee's Conglemeration Restaurant on Pacific Coast Highway last February.

The compact machine gun holds a 40-round magazine of 9-millimeter ammunition, fires at a rate of 650 rounds per minute and is considered one of the most sophisticated combat weapons in Robert Powis, chief of the Secret Service's Los Angeles office, said he would "rather not comment on the matter at this

Although no police re-port was filed, with local authorities, Sgt. Robert Gatewood of the Newport Beach police department this week confirmed the incident.

Gatewood said the agents cautioned police to keep an eye out for the weapon, which apparently has not been recovered.

Jean Chassanade, general manager of the restaurant, said he was not aware of the incident, but noted the President's son dines there frequently.

Parks-coastal bill has a last chance

SACRAMENTO (AP) A bill to place a $280-million bond issue for public parks, including $110 million for public purchase of coastal land, on the November ballot was defeated in the Senate Friday, but will get a last chance Monday. "I can't believe it," said

Assemblyman Gary Hart, D-Santa Barbara, a coauther of the legislation that he called a "motherhood kind of thing" for the citi-zens of the state.

The measure, cut from $375 million, emerged Thursday from a twohouse conference commit-tee that turned a deaf ear to Hart's plea to include $200 million for coastal land purchase.

Instead, the committee cut money for coastal land buying from $150 million to $110 million.

The bill is independent of other legislation aimed at implementing the California Coastal Conservation Plan, a once-defeated measure that backers will try to revive next week.

Meantime, the Senate

Regents met by protesters

A group of 15 UCLA stu-dents, upset over proposed fee increases and program cutbacks, briefly disrupted a University of California a University of Cainorna Regents meeting Friday. The group, identified as members of a UCLA "Stu-dent Brigade," engaged in a heated exchange with board chairman William French Smith.

Smith ruled the students out of order and said their protests couldn't be heard in view of the full agenda facing the regents. When the students refused to be the students refused to be silenced, Lt. Gov. Mervyn Dymally, a board mem-ber, and student regent designate Daryn Peeples, led them to another room at the Los Angeles Convention Center to hear their grievances. Dymally said the students were unhappy about cutbacks in UCLA health and child-care programs and with "general cut-backs as a whole." He said they also were opposed to a proposed registration fee increase of $48-a-year at all of the nine UC campuses.

"They said there are too many rich people on the Board of Regents," Dymally reported after the 40-minute meeting.

Dymally said he decided to meet separately with the protestors "to avoid a confrontation. I thought it would serve some good if I would meet with them to let them air their views.

He said he will relay the students' remarks to Gov. Brown. A representative of the governor, who ap-peared Thursday before the Regents, says Brown is opposed to a fee increase because he believes more time is needed to consider the controversial hike.

Saxon asserted in a news conference after the regents' meeting that "most students would agree with the fee in-crease" rather than see a cutback in programs.

The proposed increase, which may reach $93-a-year by 1980, is needed to fund "fringe activities" such as sports, counseling and health care, regents contend.

William K. Coblentz, a San Francisco attorney, was elected chairman of the regents to succeed Smith. Edward W. Carter was named vice chairman.

Hays's ouster sparks big reform push

By RICHARD LYONS
New York Times Service

New York Times Service WASHINGTON - The

forced resignation of Rep. Wayne L. Hays, D-Ohio, Friday as chairman of the House Administration Committee, whetted de-mands by members of both parties for sweeping reforms in the House to restore public confidence in its operations.

Democratic leaders met several times throughout the day to consider the form and content of proposals they will make next week to change the housekeeping operations of the chamber to avoid more scandal.

Speaker Carl Albert of Oklahoma announced Hays's resignation, a move demanded by the Democratic leadership after the initial revelations that Hays had appointed his mistress to the committee's staff.

"The Hays resignation is not the end of it," said Rep. Thomas P. O'Neill of Massachusetts, the major-nounce reform proposals next week and have remedial legislation out by the July 2 recess."

Rep. Frank Thompson, the New Jersey Democrat who will replace Hays as committee chairman next week, said he had a "whole headful of ideas," including a drastic over-hauling of the accounting systems to prevent payroll padding and other abuses.

One of Hays's main sources of power had been the right of his committee to determine the sizes of many of the expense allowances to which representatives are entitled. The reform mood brought dozens of reform proposals, including audits of all the House records of the 94th Congress, the hiring of private manage-ment consultants to examcongressional operations, and the creation of an employee rights committee for the House as a vehicle to air grievances against members.

Hays, who has been hospitalized in Barnesville. Ohio, since taking an overdose of sleeping pills eight days ago, then released through his office here a brief announcement which said:

Rep. Michael Harring-ton of Massachusetts sent a letter to his fellow Democrats on the House International Relations Committee asking for a caucus "in the near futo consider his request that Hays be ousted as chairman of that committee's Subcommittee on International Operations.

'I don't have any idea that Mr. Hays has been guilty of any wrongdoing through his service on international operations, but we ought to be strong-ly warned by his actions on other committees and ought to remove him now before we do it under a hail of bullets," Harring-

Hays's fourth chairmanship, that of the Congressional Joint Committee on Printing, is due to expire at the end of this year.

Hays also is under investigation of payroll padding charges by both the Justice Department and the House Ethics chairman, Rep. John J. Flynt, D-Ga., said the panel is continuing its inquiries into Hays's actions as chairman of the administration committee.

Flynt is investigating charges made by Elfzabeth Ray that she had been hired by Hays to serve as a clerk on the committee at a salary of $14,000, but acted primarily as his mistress. Hays has denied that Miss Ray served no useful purpose on the committee staff.

If Miss Ray's charges are substantiated they would seem to indicate a violation of the Fatse Claims Act. In addition to these investigations, W. Edward Thompson, an attorney here, has filed suit against Hays and Miss Ray to recover most of the $35,000 that had been paid to her in her several jobs in the House.

'More lap dogs than watch dogs' Press shuns sex scandals

: By MARC ROSENWASSER

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - The Washington press corp has shied away from reporting about sex scandals in the past because "it's always been against the rules to write about that," syndicated columnist Jack Anderson said Friday.
"We're supposed to be the watchdogs of government, but more often we've been the lap dogs," he told other reporters during a press conference at the inaugural meeting of the Investigative Reporters and Editors (IRE).

Socializing among members of the media and politicians has hin-dered the investigative work done in Washington, Anderson added.

They (editors and publishers) become pariahs when they show up at the country club when the headline on the front page assails the other three in the foursome. It's The current scandal in Washington was touched off after disclosure of a sexual relationship between Rep. Wayne Hays, a powerful Ohio Democrat, and Elizabeth Ray, a staff worker on one of his committees. Hays is the subject of investigation by federal and House authorities to see if Miss Ray was paid to do secretarial work or only to be his mistress.

Miss Ray came to Anderson two years ago with some charges concerning sex on Capitol Hill. Anderson has said he and an associate checked out her story but were unable to corroborate it and therefore did not publish her alle-

The veteran Washington correspondent said there is a growing backlash among the public over the wave of investigative stories done the past few years. 'There's latent hostility to the press, a feeling that these terrible things wouldn't be happening if we weren't writing about them," Anderson explained "There's a feeling among the public that the press has gone too far."

Anderson was here to address the gathering of some 220 investigative reporters and editors. Also scheduled to address the three-day conference are New York Times investigative reporter Seymour Hersh and Des Moines Register and Tribune bureau chief Clark

Organizers of the conference said creation of a special research center will aid reporters around the nation in their investigative work. In effect the center will be an alternative morgue (library,) a specialized source of information with which to organize, research and report stories," said Harley Bierce, one of the organizers and a reporter for the Indianapolis Star.

Elizabeth Ray wins ban on picture sales

WASHINGTON (AP) -Elizabeth Ray, who has said Rep. Wayne Hays put her on the government payroll to have sexual relations with him, won a temporary restraining order Friday to stop a local photographer from selling nude photos of her taken four years ago.

Trusteeship gives national officers of the Teamsters control of the local's affairs and assets for up to 18 months.

Local 299, torn by dissension that has often involved heatings and bombings, is considered to be strongly pro-Hoffa and anti-Fitzsimmons. Before Hoffa disappeared last July 30, he told associates he planned to launch a bid to unseat Fitzimmons by becoming president of Local 299. Johnson said he would step aside to give his post to Hoffa.

Not attending the convention were Johnson and another member of Local 299's executive board, Otto Wendel, who also supported Hoffa. Johnson said he stayed away from the convention because he wanted to stay away from Fitzsimmons.

"I don't see any reason for a trusteeship," said Johnson. "They want Dick Fitzsimmons (as Local 299 president) and they'll do anything to get him in there."

Bitter campaign ends Religious People and ideas as Italy awaits ballot

ROME (AP) — Italian parties ended a bitter and violent campaign for parliamentary elections Friday night with the two largest parties - Christian Democrats and Communists - hurling accusations at each other in Rome rallies. The elections Sunday and Monday are judged tantamount to a referen-dum on Italian-style communism, although nine national parties are vying for 630 chamber and 315 senate seats. Campaigning ended at midnight Friday with a day-long pause Saturday be-fore the balloting by about 40 million Italians.

COMMUNIST leader Enrico Berlinguer called the Christian Democrats a "Barnum circus" divided by factions and tainted with corruption. About 40,-000 persons roared their approval and gave clenched-fist salutes when Berlinguer demanded the resignation of Foreign Minister Mariano Rumor. accusing him of involvement in the Lockheed pay-off_scandal, one of the isomes of the 45-day election campaign.

Less than two miles away, Budget Minister Gittio Andreotti, a Christian Democrat, warned that Communists "are not a new party," but a party that has brought horrors and lack of freedom in the countries they rule. About 10,000 persons attended less than a rally held the Violence continued to the final day of the campaign which was marred by four deaths. In industrial Milan, leftist gangs tossed firebombs at the offices of the rightwing Italian Social Movement (MSI) Party. Although rampant inflation — 35 per cent on an annual basis in January through April — the decline of the currency, and an unemployment rate of 7 per cent of the 20 millionstrong labor force all figured as election issues, they were overshadowed by "the Communist question.'

At the Communist rally, Berlinguer said:

The Christian Democrat rally was marred by the absence of party secretary Benigno Zaccagnini, recuperating from prostate surgery.
Andreotti, who has served nearly continuously in one capacity or another in governments formed by the Christian Democrats in the past 29 years, chal-lenged the Communist party's pledge of respect for democracy. In front of a massive banner proclaiming the Christian Democrat campaign slogan "The new DC (Christian Democrats) has already begun," Andreotti said the Communists would have the voters believe "the new communism has already begun."

RUMOR, at a rally in his hometown of Vicenza, was met by a group of extremists, shouting and waving hostile placards. Police intervened to disperse the youths. Rumor once again denied any wrongdoing in the Lockheed affair. The Italian Communist Party - PCI - took 33 per cent of the votes in a nationwide local polling last June and embarked on a major drive to overtake the Christian Democrats, the dominant party whose strength has slipped from 48 per cent in 1948 to 35 per cent last year.

The Communist Party, guided by the soft-spoken Berlinguer, waged an all-out campaign against the Christian Democrats, who led Italy from the ruins of World War II through the economic "Il Boom" of the 1950s and 1960s and back to its current ecoon Israel atomic plant nomic bust

Religious Issues, the morals of America and elevated social consciences have highlighted conventions of three Protestant denominations meeting this week in southern states.

Beginning with such issues as homosexuality, drugs and converting the world, the focus of some sessions shifted to prayer vigils and the cost of running a country church.

In Norfolk, Va., Southern Baptists condemned homosexuality, continued their uneasy approval of therapeutic abortions and agreed that their pastors are probably guilty of neglecting their own children.

THE Presbyterian Church, U.S., meeting in Tuscaloosa, Ala., decided the service agencies and boards its delegates set up two years ago did not have enough accountability. Reflecting what is viewed as dissatisfaction with the agencies' performance, this year's delegates have started restructuring the organizations.

A series of "black papers" on current social issues is being prepared in Atlanta by the Conference of the African Methodist Episcopal (AME) Church, denomination formed in Philadelphia in 1787 by a former slave.

The church's "black papers" are expected to be released during weekend sessions, which also will have discussions on criminal justice, and the lure of religious cults which some members feel are wooing AME's young people.

THE Southern Baptists ended their convention Thursday night with the consensus that the nation was suffering from a wave of immorality. Delegates approved a resolution to double evangelistic efforts by the year 2,000, and reaffirmed the church's belief that homosexuality was a sin.

A move to view homosexuality with "compassion" was amended to view it with "concern.

chancers, people petty or big, who always play the game for No. 1. And always, you may be sure, they will doublecross you if necessary. Treason is the name of the game. Perhaps the most glamorous of American main-chancers was Gen. Benedict Arnold, hero and traitor.

Young Benedict started life as a druggist. He was good in his profession, but e wasn't willing to spend his life in a stuffy New England store. So he left his sister Hannah to tend the shop while he bought ships and took up smuggling in the Caribbean. (Smuggling in colonial New England was almost a respectable crime.)

The store grew and grew, becoming a kind of early-day Sav-On with books, dry goods, spices, rum and other merchan-

When war was approaching he became commanding officer of the local unit of Connecticut militia. He was a spit-andpolish soldier, demanding beautiful uniforms, strict discipline, constant drill and sobriety. The soldiers were mostly young gentry.

When war came they were sent on an ill-planned campaign through the unexplored wilderness of Maine to attack the British in Canada. They joined forces with Ethan Allen's Green Mountain Boys, a band of hard-drinking, hell-roaring, Bible-quoting hillbillies. Their worst enemies were the wilderness, winter and disease. It was one of the roughest little campaigns in American history. They didn't win, but they took Fort Ticonderoga and made the British respect them.

Arnold, now a general, fought heroically in many battles. He especially distinguished himself at Saratoga. He took a couple of bad wounds, so his friend Washington relieved him of field duty by making him commandant of Philadelphia. Arnold, a handsome widower and a bonafide hero, lived high in high society and married one of the belles.

He got himself assigned to West Point, then a key fortress. There he started dickering with the British to give them the strong-hold — for a price. His young wife was also involved.

The plot was discover-ed, and Arnold fled to the British. The gratitude of princes is a chancey thing, but the British paid his price, guaranteed pensions for himself and family, and made him a colonel. He conducted three important raids, one of which was marred by the massacre of Americans who had surrendered. Although Arnold, it seems, had no

Washington wanted to see him hanged but could never catch him.

After the war he and his family went to England, where he was only half-welcome. Many would not accept a traitor. He continued to be a main-chancer, without much luck. He tried business in New Brunswick, but Tories who had fled from the United States burned him in effigy and labeled him traitor. Why did the man act this way? It is suggested that it was because of his inordinate love of money. He knew how to get the stuff but he was always on the edge of bankruptcy because of his vainglorious tastes.

Perhaps. But doesn't it run deeper than that? Here was a man who didn't believe in anything except the main chance. At an early age he disavowed all religion. It is not recorded, as far as I have read, that he had the kind of fervor for the Revolution expressed by the men who pledged "their lives, their fortunes and their Sacred Honor" in the Declaration of Independence. He was a man of heroic courage on the battlefield but perhaps he was fighting only for himself and a handful of medals. VESTMENT

OF HISTORY

Cardinal Timothy Manning wore a 200-year-old cope which may have been used by Father Junipero Serra when he installed William R. Johnson as the first Bishop of Orange in Holy Family Cathedral, Orange, on Friday.

The vestment is one of the historic treasures of the Church of San Juan Capistrano, which was founded by Father Serra. The cardinal's act was beautifully symbolic.

In one liturgy the response is: "Lord have mercy, Christ have mercy, Lord have mercy."

Anyone who believes in this imperative is standing in the need of mercy. Who knows how to love God or his neighbor or, perhaps especially, himself?

And yet, this unwork-able categorical imperative has through the millenia and in spite of all the brought joy and meaning and measures of love to Christians and Jews.

The gist of the sermon was against a major sin of Avalon. The islanders tend to think of themselves as superior to the people of the mainland.

He mentioned a city study of noise pollution in Avaion. It was found to be much less than that of of Los Angeles, but that such a comparison is not fair. The noise problems of a village in a wilderness are not the same as those of the metropolis.

He went on to point out that Avalon should not pride itself on being better than the people of the metropolis. Rather, it should be humble and measure itself by the highest ideals of Christianity.

(Avalon has some causes for pride. There is

Jimmy Carter's sister

She heals through Christ, psychology

By GEORGE W. CORNELL AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) Helping emotionally scarred persons to accept forgiveness - and thus to accept themselves — is a key to the ministry of Ruth Carter Stapleton, the perceptive, pretty sister of Democratic presidential contender Jimmy Carter.

She uses a combination of psychology and Christian teaching.

"Most people had never thought of doing that be-fore," she says. "That's why it's so new. I have a hackground in both areas. and they belong together. All I've done is go back and put the two together.'

Thousands maintain she has helped them overcome deep-buried nurts.

Although sometimes misportrayed as a grand-standing "faith-healer," she rejects the term and the technique. "It's not at all what I do," she says.

AS A spiritual counselor, she applies parallel premises both of psychology and Christ's loving acceptance of those who consider themselves unloved, unloyable and unaccepted.

'The whole basis of healing is acceptance of oneself," she said in an interview. "When you do that, you can accept other people and become aware of acceptance of God. It's the basis of Christianity. being forgiven, accepted, freed of self-condemnation." A trim, blue-eved blonde woman of 46, Mrs. Stapleton of Fayetteville, N.C., calls her approach "inner healing". It's a low-key, introspective process, consisting both of probing childhood experiences and prayer focused on Christ's limitless love for each person.

I WORK with the inner emotions of people to root out causes of emotional disorders, alcoholism, drug addiction, crippling anxieties," she said. "Most psychologists talk only to the intellect. I try to reach the subconscious - the spirit.

"As a byproduct of emo-tional healing, many also come to experience deeper dimensions of spiritual growth. Often they may experience physical heal-ing when the psychosomatic causes are re-moved."

She details case histories in a book, "The Gift of Inner Healing," published by Word Books of Waco, Texas. In sessions across the country and abroad, she has offered her guidance to individuals, groups and large audiences. THE SALVATION ARMY

But in many ways at present, she said, Christian organizational life is "sick," falling short of its real meaning, giving the impression of being "exclusivist, divisive, judgmental, a legalistic set of moral laws," representing God only as a "God of judgment," condemning our fellow man and ourselves," split into separate groups as if "every denomination is a little god."

"IT'S A FALSE image, but it's what we have done to Christianity, what Christianity has done to it-self," she said. "What we need to do is get back to the basic person of Jesus who is open to every man.

Changes appear in the making, she added. "In this time and age the meaning of Christianity seems to be coming clear-er. Groups are being reconciled, barriers between denominations broken down and prejudice begins to be diminished on every level."

What she seeks to do. she said, is to help people "see God as a God of love. He is on their side. He wants to heal more than they want to be healed. I try to bring them to the place to receive that." ALTHOUGH spending

Pursuit of Happiness

From time to time it is good to do some thinking about happiness and what makes for it. With our Bicentennial at hand this would seem a fitting time. The Declaration of Independence proclaims the purauit of happiness a basic human right. In June 1776 the Contimental Congress, composed of delegates from 13 American Colonies, derenounce aflegiance to the British Crown and sever all politioal ties with Great Britain. They appointed a committee of five to draft as suitable proclamation. Among the five: Benjamin Franklin, age 70 and by far the most famous member of the Congress; and two future presidents of the United States: John Adams of Massachusetts, age 41, and Thomas Jefferson of Virginia, age 33.

The committee asked Jefferson to do the actual writing. After consultation, principally with Franklin and Adams, he wrote a remarkable document. It was submitted to the Congress and after an all-day debate, with Adams vigorously defending its merits, was by unanimous vote accepted on July 4, 1776 with only minor changes and a few deletions. Thus Jefferson's inspired draft became the official Declaration of Illdependence.

We hold these truths to be self-evident: that all men are created edual: that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights; that among these ate life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness." Notice the basic right is not happiness, but the pursuit of happiness. The philosophers of our American Revolution wisely avoided the guarantee of happiness. Inasmuch as it depends largely upon a person's mental attitude no government could confer it. But they did guarantee the right to pursue happiness. Believe me, that is dutte a right.

The Founding Fathers had their views on what is conducive to happiness, and some of Jefferson's ideas on this subject are stated in his inaugural address of 1801. One of certain "blessings" which he accounted for Americans being a happy and prosperous people was "religion ... practiced in various forms, yet all of them including honesty, truth, temperance, grati-tude, and the love of man." Another was the fact that we were a people acknowledging and adoring an overruling Providence ... that delights in the happiness of man here and his greater happiness héreaster. "Most Americans are aware that those who practice honesty, temperance, thankfulness and love are lots happier in the long run than those who don't. But are we equally human liberty in Spain."

aware of a sense of a Providence at work in human life? This belief was widespread in the early years of this nation's history. It shows in the public reaction to what occurred on the Fourth of July in 1826. John Adams and Thomas Jefferson, 91 and 83 years of age, died within a few hours of each other. The impact of their deaths is described in a biography by Page Smith:

"It was almost a week before word spread through the country that the two last great figures of the American Revolution had both died on the Fourth of July, 50 years to the day after the resolution of independence. It could not be said that Americans were struck dumb, rather the opposite. They were struck into an outpouring of wonder and astonishment. A great cry of amazement and awe rose from the nation. For those Americans of a religious persuasion it seemed peculiar instance of the intervention of that divine Providence which had guided the United States from its inception. Even hardened skeptics were shaken in their disbelief.'

We of the present generation could surely do with more of this sense of Divine Providence. A belief in high destiny challenging us both individually and as a nation could lead us on the road to greater happi-

If our people would let their minds dwell a little more on the deeper mysteries of life, Divine Guidance which was so great a part of the early days of our country would develop once again. To survive as a nation and discharge our leadership in the complex modern world can best be done through dependence upon the Guidance of God did our forefathers in their time.

WASHINGTON, D.C. (AP) — The social justice expert of the U.S. Catholic Conference has asked the U.S. Senate to postpone ratification of a proposed treaty of friendship with Spain, once linked in an accord with the Vatican, until prospects for "internal reforms" are clearer.

The Rev. Bryan J Hebir, in a letter to all senators, cited repressive excesses under Spain's late Generalissimo Francisco Franco. He said the new government of King Juan Carlos has "moved slowly to institute re-forms," but Franco supporters in the government have opposed them. Anti-Pharisee

I have long enjoyed your coverage of the reli-gious scene, and have appreciated the fact that you seem to be fair in your approach to controversial topics, but in your June 5 issue I just could not help taking exception to your article entitled "Pharisees don't deserve bad name". You must be kidding.

I would suggest you go to chapter 23 in the Gospel according to Matthew and read it. After all the New Testament is the only source of information we have concerning Jesus and His relationship with His contempories. The Pharisees were the ones responsible for His trial and death on the cross.

Note from Matt. 23, verses 13 ind 14 "but woe unto you Scribes, and Parisees, for ye shut up the Kingdom Of Heaven against men; for ye neither go in yourselves, neither allow them that are entering to go in. Woe unto you, Scribes, and Pharisees HYPOCRITES, for ye devour widows' houses, and for a pretense make long prayers: therefore, ye shall receive the greater damnation. Verse 15 Woe unto you Scribes, Pharisees hypocrites, for ye compass sea and land to make one proselyte, and when he is made ye make him twofold more the child of HELL than yourselves." Now, Mr. Clutter, does this sound to you like a "Lover's Quarrel" (Quote from Bishop Sheen)? I can appreciate the efforts of the world of religion to water down New Testament truth and make it palatable to humanistic religion, but let's try to be reasonably fair to the written Word of God. Thank you for taking the time to read this. Best wishes to you in your work. I often use your comments in our Wednes-

Editor's note: The article in question was written by George W. Cornell, AP Religion Writer, not by this Religion Editor. Articles appearing on these pages reflect a variety of opinions. Witness In view of recent letters about Jehovah's Christian Witnesses in the past few weeks we are prompted to ask "What do most people think a Christian is?" It would seem that the qualifications for being a Christian are few and easily filled according to the letters we have read. As one standard to answer this question we can go to Webster's Second Collegiate Dictionary which says under the heading Christian: A person professing belief in Jesus as the Christ; professing the religion based on these teachings and having the qualities demonstrated and taught by Christ such as love, kindness, humility, etc. As another standard (and a superior one) we will go to the Bible. The Bible says a Christian is: (1) one who follows the foot steps of Christ — 1 Pet. 2:21

(2) one who recognizes that salvation is through Christ - Acts 5:30 & 31 1 Thess. 5:9

(3) not involved in wordly affairs — John 15:19 — James 4:4-1 John 2:15

(4) they obey worldly rulers unless they conflict with God's laws - Acts 4:19 & 20 - 5:27-29 -Matt. 22:21

(5) Religion is a way of life - Acts 19:9 - Matt. 22:37

(6) they must put away the works of the flesh and put on the fruits of the - Gal. 5:19-23 Rom. 12:2 - Eph. 4:17 & 19-24

(7) like Jesus they must witness for God — John 17:6 & 26 — Rev. 1:5— Rom. 15:5 & 6

(8) they must witness for Jesus also — Acts 1:8 — Acts 5:22 — Acts 10:40-42

(9) Christians are to be preachers — Matt. 28:19 & 20 — Matt. 24:14 Rom. 10:9 & 10 - Acts 5:42 - 1 Cor. 9:16

(10) they must expect to . - John suffer persecution -15:20 — Luke 6:22 & 23 — 1 Pet. 5:9

(11) true Christians have unity throughout the world - 1 Cor. 1:10 John 17:20 &

foregoing the Bible's qualifications are more strigent than commonly beld opinions.

For example: is the man who attends church regularly and makes large lonations on Sunday but then on Monday steals from his employer, really a Christian? Are the parents who are involved in their religious activities to the extent that their children do not get the proper guidance and companion ship of their parents really Christian? Or how about the people who tell little lies feeling it is perfectly alright if it suits their pur-Dose in view of Jesus words at Luke 16:10. And then there are those who call themselves "Christian", like the doctor that inflates his bill to Medicare and the like, or the politican that supports illicit sexual relations with the taxpayer's money, or the "good" mother who drinks to the point of intoxication while the children are in school, or the policeman who sells dope on the side. And we could go on, and on, and on. And all these "profess to be Christian." We find all these practices tightly does this harmonize with what the Bible says about a Christian? It is interesting to note that of all the groups who profess to be Christian, only one who as a world wide organization, practice the requirements of Christianty as set forth in the Bible. This group is the only one free from the corrupt practices mentioned. This group is also the object of much hostility as Jesus said they would be — Matt. 10:22 — John

Anti-Mormon

As a concerned born again Christian, I became very disturbed over the article by Eva G. Miner on the Mormon church. I appreciate your religion

section in that it does print stories on other faiths, but I don't think it is fair to your readers who might not know what the Mormons stand for. In no way can the Normons claim to be Christians, as the story made it appear. The Mormons do not "preach a strict, straight gospel based on old-fashioned

Biblical principals." The Mormons teach that God is an exalted man, and was once like we are now. If they believe that, then pres. Kimball's statesame yesterday, today and forever" is false. They deny the principal doctrine of traditional Christianity that salvation is provided by grace alone through the work of Jesus Christ, I admire the Mormons and the success they have had, but I feel it is untair to non-Mormons and especially Christians to classify them as Christian. Every person who considers joining the Mormon church should read 1 John 4:1-3 and Galatians Russ Schwartz

Concerts

The Lord has provided the opportunity for an interdenominational outreach to Long Beach and the surrounding area by means of Christian Music Concerts. The concerts will be held on a monthly basis, and will feature Maranatha Music groups They will begin at 7:30 p.m., the last Friday of each month, with the initial one commencing on June 25th. The place of the concerts will be the Ebell Auditorium here in Long Beach. The Ebell is located on 3rd Street at Cerritos Ave., just one block west of Orange Ave.

A small committee has been formed to handle the production of the concerts. This committee, given the title "SALT" is not affiliated with a specific congregation, but desires rather to serve the entire body of Christ. We hope that members of your congregation will be able to use this outreach both to edify and to draw others to our Lord Jesus Christ. We hope also that you will pray for the outreach as you remember it. If there are questions

of strict racial separation.

THE racial upheaval spread to at least seven black townships in the Johannesburg region and erupted elsewhere in the country Friday. Police fought with automatic weapons and tear gas as angry blacks continued to riot, loot and burn.

The rioting broke out Wednesday in the black township of Soweto after police tried to break up a protest by high school students over required courses in Afrikaans, the language of the white rul-Boer faction. Adults quickly joined in and it became a revolt against the government and apartheid.

Some blacks see Afrikaans as a symbol of White oppression. Black students want to be taught in English, which they see as more practical and .widespread.

AT THE United Nations in New York, Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim called for "maximum res-raint to end the bloodshed and suffering," and black nations called for a U.N. meeting on the issue.

Waldheim said in a statement he was con-vinced "only urgent steps to end apartheid and ra cial discrimination can al-leviate the tensions and unrest in South Africa.

In Geneva, Switzerland, the World Council of Churches urged South Africa to halt immediately its "ruthless police oppression" and meet blacks' demands for full human rights.

The organization of 272 Protestant churches in 90 countries denounced the order requiring the use of Afrikaans in black schools and "the inferior education system" imposed on blacks. It said the system was designed to "deny them any role in society other than that of worker and servant."

IN LUSAKA, the Zambian foreign minister strongly condemned the South African government for the deaths of "unarmed and innocent" people and called on the government to abandon apartheid.

Vorster maintaining law and order at home was more important than his meeting with U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, set for June 22-23 in West Germany. But Vorster did not call off the meeting.
Police Brig. J.F. Visser said his "patience is at an end. From now on we will use tougher methods. The riot situation is worsening but not out of control."

Under the Riotous Assemblies Act, Kruger banned all outdoor public gatherings until June 29.

The worst escalations in violence Friday ocurred in the black township of Alexandra and spilled over into adjacent white suburbs in northern Johannesburg.

POLICE opened fire on screaming mobs of blacks, mostly juveniles, who had set up roadblocks and prevented riot units armed with automatic rifles and tear gas from moving into the area.

Twelve persons were later reported dead and columns of acrid smoke from burning buildings and vehicles spiraled above the shantytown, nine miles from the city center.

Several cars in neigh boring white areas were stoned and two white women were reportedly

Rape victims identify El Toro Marine NCO

A 24-year-old U.S. Ma-rine was indicted Friday by the Orange County Grand Jury and arraigned on 41 felony counts after being identified by several rape victims. Staff Sgt. Gary Lee Jackman, who is stationed at the El Toro Marine Corps Air Station, was arrested by Tustin police last month on an indecent exposure charge. Officers said they noted his resemblance to a composite sketch of a suspect in the rapes of as many as 20 women in the Newport Beach and Laguna Beach areas during the 16 months between January, 1975, and last April.

The grand jury indictment of Jackman lists 16 counts of forcible rape, 13 counts of burglary, six counts of robbery, four of forcible oral copulation and two of assault with intent to commit rape.

Most of the victims told police their assailant was polite, liked to talk and related his early childhood experiences to them.

Black attorney again nominated U.S. judge

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) Cecil F. Poole, nominated twice before for a federal judgeship but never confirmed, said Friday he won't be able to relax until his new anpointment is approved by the U.S. Senate.

President Ford nominated Poole Friday to replace Oliver J. Carter as a judge in the U.S. District Court's Northern District of California.

Poole, the nation's first black U.S. attorney, was nominated in 1968 by President Johnson, but Sepate confirmation was blocked by the objections of George Murphy, then a Republican senator from California.

Johnson nominated Poole again just before he left office, but President Nixon withdrew the nomination. His nomination was aunounced the day funeral services were held for Carter, who died Monday of a heart attack at the age of 65. U.S. District Court offices were closed from 1 to 4 p.m. to allow employes and judges to attend the services at Calvary Presbyterian Church, where Carter was an elder.

"Oliver Carter was a real human being," said the Rev. Dr. Robert Young. "Although a judge, he was never quick to judge. He placed himself in the other person's place. His life, his decisions and his heart all were formed by his faith." He said Carter was "a man always concerned with making life more human," "a wise interpreter of our laws" and "a servant of all people but a hireling of none."

Carter, best known for presiding over the Patricia Hearst bank-robbery trial: retired in April to senior status, under which his work load was cut in half.

The man who replaces him has been regents professor of law at the University of California since 1970, when he resigned as U.S. attorney.

Poole, 61, was an assistant district attorney in San Francisco from 1949 to to 1958 and executiveclemency secretary and legal counsel to Gov. Edmund G. Brown Sr. from ·1959 to 1961.

Final preparations were being made Friday to put the Viking into orbit around Mars. A 40-minute rocket firing this afternoon is planned to put the Viking in orbit. Subsequently, the orbit will be trimmed to a smaller circle. As it circles for about 10 days, the spacecraft will survey its landing site at the mouth of the huge rift valley. The site is in an area called Chryse.

If the landing site appeared to contain no major hazards the lander will separate from the mother ship on July 4 and, slowed by a parachute and the firing of braking rockets, will reach the plant's surface that evening. Experiments to be carried out over the ensuing weeks are designed to detect the presence of living

An identical Viking probe, launched last Sept. 9 three weeks after the launch of Viking 1, is also speeding toward the planet. It is scheduled to touch down on Mars about Sept. 4.

The Viking program is America's first attempt to land a craft on Mars. The Soviets have tried several times but did not succeed in receiving much useful data from the surface.

The U.S. effort has cost about $1 billion.

BOWLE KUHN Unprecedented move

Kuhn to Finley: 'No sale'

Baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn, often criticized for his moderate action, shattered baseball precedent Friday by unexpectedly cancelling Charles O. Finley's $3.5 million sale of three of his top players to the New York Yankees and the Boston Red Sox.

Finley, the maverick owner of the Oakland A's, immediately announced he was taking Kulm to court, while Kulm and Markey and Red Sox had one while Kuhn said the Yankees and Red Sox had each expressed a similar intention.

Kuhn, who reflected on this historic action for more than 24 hours before announcing it to a jammed news conference in New York City, said, "I am disallowing the assignment of the contracts in the best interest of baseball."

Kuhn whose tangent as a comprise.

Kuhn, whose tenure as commissioner was threat-ened by a palace revolt last December—an unsuc-cessful insurrection led by Finley, said only he could uphold the integrity of the game and the maintenance of public respect for the sport.

"The commissioner is left with the lonely job of deciding integrity and confidence," Kuhn said. "I have to weigh public opinion. I've been commissioner for eight years, and I have to use my own judgment. That's what I do. That's my job."

Finley said Kuhn "sounds like the village idiot. It's very stupid.
"There have been many, many cash transactions

over the years and nothing has ever been questioned

He later ordered his manager, Chuck Tanner, not to use Joe Rudi, Vida Blue or Rollie Fingers. "I don't even want them in uniform," he said.

"We're going to court Monday morning for an injunction," Finley told his manager.

"You should own the American League after you get through with this one," said Tanner.

Finley touched off tremors in the baseball world Tuesday night by selling Blue to the New York Yankees for $1.5 million and Fingers and Rudi to the Boston Red Sox for $1 million each.

But Kuhn turned those tremors into an earth-quake by voiding the sales and upsetting baseball precedent. He ordered that the Oakland Three would remain on the A's roster and could participate in Friday night's game against Milwaukee.

Doubles, throws out runner

Rare start by Mota pays off in 6-5 win

By GORDON VERRELL

MONTREAL-Manny Mota says he'd like to play at least one game a week in order to give Bill Buckner a day off.

Maybe what he's really saying is that he'd get six days off.

"Anytime Manny Mota, as old as he is, lives another day that is news," Don Sutton interjected as Manuel Geronimo Mota was getting all the post-game attention after the Dodgers held off the Montreal Expos. 6-5, Friday night to close to within 2½ games of Cincinnati. Mota, the Dodgers' 38-year-old pinch hitter deluxe, started his sec-ond game of the season Friday evening and besides driving in a run with a double he gunned down a Montreal run at the plate. Not surprising, he talked of his deficiency rather than what he contributed.

"I didn't make my bunt," he said, pointing to his failure to advance runners to second and third

"That's about the only time I can remember him failing," said Manny's No. I fan, manager Walter

As it developed, his strike to the plate in the fifth inning, depriving the Expos of a sure run, became decisive when Montreal's Jose Morales slugged a two-run pinch homer with two out in the ninth to get the Expos within a run. Charlie Hough, in his fourth successive game, then fanned Mike Jorgensen to secure the win, the Dodgers' fourth without a loss against Montreal. Mike Marshall, who followed starter Rick Rhoden, pitched just poorly enough to get the victory. Iron Mike took over in the seventh with the Dodgers in front, 3-0, but with two runners aboard.

He subsequently gave up a triple and a single and, just like that, the Expos were even.

But the Dodgers came up with a three-run eighth on the strength of five singles and Marshall, suddenly the pitcher of record, was able to cart off his first win since May 12.

Hough, sounding very much like Marshall, said that he felt fine and could work again today if needed. But, when asked if he saluted Morales for homering on a "quality pitch"—a la Marshall—Hough laughed and said, "Hell, no."

Ron Cey, who produced the Dodgers' third run in the three-run eighth, produced the game-winning run for the eighth time this season.
Prior to the game Alston took Mota's place delivering the lineups to the umpires before the game. Mota earned the job when the Dodgers won 12 games in a row last month.

Asked if this was to be the practice, Alston laughed and said, Only in games that Manny's starting. I don't want to wear him out."

Only two races were held during Friday's segment of the U.S. Olympic Swim Trials, and it took a competition of the emotional magnitude of the men's 400 free-

Babashoff, a 19-year-old sopho-more at Golden West College, powered her way to her third Trials triumph by capturing the women's 400 freestyle in an American record 4:12.85. Kathy Heddy, a pixie from the Central Jersey Aquatics Club who had failed twice previously in the Trials to make the team, finally earned her plane ticket by finishing second in the 400. The race started evenly, but John Naber, who had already qualified for the Olympics in the 200 freestyle and 100 backstroke, be-came the "rabbit," beating Shaw's world record splits after each of the first three legs. Naber was two seconds under the record splits after the first two hundreds and nearly three seconds up after three.

DULUTH, Ga. (AP)-Last New Year's Eve in Houston, John and Suzi Mahaffey lifted their glasses to toast in the new year.
"It will be a better year," vowed Mahaffey. "I know it will be a better year."

The one that was then closing wasn't too bad. He'd won $141,471, eighth on the pro golf tour's money-winning list. He'd finished second in five tournaments, including a playoff loss in the most prestigious of them all, the United States Open.

"I don't want to go through a year like that again," Mahaffey told his wife." It almost destroyed him. "I didn't win," he explained. "That's what the game is all about. I didn't win."

Mahaffey, perhaps the most grimly determined player on the tour, vowed he'd do better.

He took a major step in that direction Friday, composing a careful two-under-par 68 for a onestroke lead in the second round of the United States Open, the tourna-ment that was denied him in that playoff loss a year ago.

"For the first two months after that loss, I just banged my head against the wall," said Mahafley, whose boyish appearance belies a fiercely competitive spirit. "Then I turned my thinking

(Continued from B-1) During post-race interviews. Shaw discounted the impact the anemia had had on his performances recently.
"That was a long time ago," he said of the illness, "and it has no affect on how well or how poorly I do in the Trials."

But later, while embrac-ing Long Beach Swim Club assistant coach Klaus Barth, Shaw admitted, "I was dying out there, especially the last 50 meters.

"It was a courageous ace," said Shaw's coach, lick Jochums. "He went race. Dick Jochums. all out. On the final 25 meters he was swimming on guts alone."

It was a popular effort.

After Shaw qualified first Friday morning, Naber and Bruce Furniss leaped into the pool to congratulate the Long Beach State freshman.

"It had nothing to do with the fact that Tim is the greatest amateur athlete in America," explain-ed Furniss. "It is simply that he is a very, very close friend, and we want him on the team." Receiving a handshake from former Jordan High water polo coach Dave Timpone, Shaw turned water polo play-by-play announcer: "It's a desperation shot," Shaw said into an. imaginary microphone, "and, it goes in."

Then, spotting his fa-ther, Tim smiled slightly and said, "Wheeeew!"

Foolish Pleasure drew the rail spot, and between him and Ancient Title are Top Command, Riot in Paris iand Dahlia.

Outside Ancient Title, highweighted at 127 pounds and to be ridden by Sandy Hawley, will be Meteor, Our Talisman, Pay Tribute and Avatar.

The winner in the rich race will earn $150,000.

LAFFIT PINCAY JR., who rode Ancient Title to victory in this race in 1975, will be aboard Foolish Pleasure, 126, this trip. Bill Shoemaker, who's won the Gold Cup six times, will ride millionaire mare Dahlia, and Fernando Toro will be aboard Riot in Paris.

Other jockey assignments find Darrel McHargue on Avatar, Marco Castaneda on Pay Tribute, Frank Olivares on Our Talisman and Roberto Gonzalez on Mate-

Unfortunately, it now dead-ends at the front

The last five world boxing champions to enter have exited without their titles. Salvador Torres of Guadalajara, Mexico, hopes to be the sixth successive successful challenger when he meets World Boxing Association featherweight king Alexis Arguello of Nicaragua to-One man who thinks he will be is Art Hafey, the little Canadian who will fight Danny (Little Red) Lopez at the Forum next month for the right to challenge the World Box-ing Council's feather titleholder, David Kotey of Ghana.

Hafey has fought both men, losing a five-round brawl to Arguello in Nicaragua in 1974 and winning a split decision from Torres at Anaheim in '75.

"After watching both fighters train," Hafey says, "I lean toward Torres because he has really prepared himself. It seems to me that Alexis is taking Salvador too lightly and hasn't worked as hard as he should."

Not so, say others who have watched Arguello's workouts at the Main Street Gym. He seems to be doing a normal amount of ring work and concludes each session with a masochistic routine of calisthenics in the dressing room to bring his long, lean body into fine tune.

"It is important," the bi-lingual idol of his countrymen states. "I am very careful with the Mexicans. They are all good fighters-strong, courageous.

It's natural that Arguello would have great respect for the Mexicans. Not only did he have to climb off the floor to beat one-Torres' brother Jose-in a non-title bout last February, but he was mistaken for one when he came north to take the title from Ruben Olivares

So Arguello, a 2-1 favorite despite the Forum trend and Art Hafey's astute opinion, is not likely to be taking any chances.

Mexican champions come and go but Nicara-gua has had only one world champ in all its history: Alexis Arguello. His manager, Dr. Eduardo Roman, was unable to accompany him because

Mel Brooks' 'Silent Movie' says it with physical humor

The film, a silent except for one word spoken by pantomimist Marcel Marceau, opens in the Long Beach area June 30.

'I've tried to make a film everyone all over the world could laugh at.' says "Blazing Saddles" and "Young Frankenstein" Brooks:

'The best and most controversial jokes are nonverbal. They transcend the barriers of country and background. We all laugh when a clown takes a pratfall. "We could really be outrageous in this film because a silent movie encompasses many more possibilities for physical humor—you don't have the limitations of verbiage."

THE 20th Century-Fox presentation of the Brooks ilm is about a has-been director who decides to make a silent movie in modern-day Hollywood.

It is directed by Brooks. Screenplay credits include Brooks, and it stars Brooks, Marty Feldman and Dom DeLuise, with Sid Caesar and Bernadette

WASHINGTON - Unfortunately, all the presidential candidates have come through so far without any sex scandal.

I say "unfortunately" because some of them would have done better WITH a sex scandal. Outside of the debate whether Ronald Reagan dyed his hair, what did we have? Nothing. But didn't Harold Stassen have something in his closet? Yes — some 1968 suits.

Satirist Mark Russell, who'll be in New York entertaining for the Democratic convention crowds at the Rainbow Grill, said the public is so fascinated by the gex scandals that if Richard Nixon had a juicy one he might still be in office.

'It could have saved him," says Russell. He points out that after a long debate about his innocence or guilt, Nixon could have called a big press conference and tearfully announced, "Your President is not a super-are crashing the newsstands for the latest revelations about the illicit romances of their leading personalities.

The outburst against the supposed Nixon love letters is just a beginning. I pity Nixon, whom I consider innocent in this case, but I find that the reporters are not oning to give up on the only ex-President they've get. not going to give up on the only ex-President they've got to work on.

They are probing every look and glance they can remember Nixon ever flashing toward a female. But he is much too business-like for such a role, in the opinion of most people.

As for President Ford, he leads in the purity league and he appears now to have outlasted the stumbling-allaround jokes. The President appeared to have been the victim of a lot of Polish-type iokes, which didn't really hurt him. But none of those gags fool around with sex. "DICK and Jane" director Ted Kotchoff also noticed the Fonda eye for detail: "We were doing this scene where George and Jane are stealing money out of a record store cash register. Both of them had gloves on so they wouldn't leave fingerprints. In the shot George is in the foreground, but I'll be damned if Jane didn't start licking her rubber-gloved fingers like a bank teller when she was counting the money. It's a small thing, but it could play funny on the screen. The point is she's always investing banal moments with something

Inside her dressing room, while jumping into a costume of tight blue jeans and a fuzzy purple sweater, Fonda talked about her three-year absence from films and the reasons she's making "Dick and Jane."

She's very direct. When I walked into the dressing room—just a converted bedroom in the house-she stood up, stuck out her hand for a handshake and said, "Hello; I don't want to talk to you now." She next took a phone call, and then we talked. She said:

"I HAVEN'T been completely out of films for three years. After 'Klute' (1971), I got a lot of scripts with parts for prostitutes. Instead I played Nora in 'A Doll's House' for television. I made documentaries (including 'Introduc-tion to the Enemy,' an hour-long film on North Vietnam)."

She suddenly broke off. "Hide my falsies; I don't want the press to know, she said to the makeun woman who was arranging her sweater.

"I'M GOING to need some perfume," she then said to her handmaiden-a detail that would be invisible to the camera.

Getting back to me once more, she continued: "As a matter of fact, a couple of days before I received this script, I was talking to a policewoman in Orange County who told me there was an average of five bank robberies in Orange County each day. And they're unable to catch the robbers, because they are essentially white males, middle-aged, who have no criminal record. And in the story our couple become robbers.

"Don't worry," she then said, excusing herself to go downstairs to play a scene with Segal; "I know exactly where I left off."

Segal says Fonda is one of the best light comediennes we have, if there's such a category anymore. There was such a category like that in the '30s with Rosalind Russell, Katharine Hepburn.' 'Dick and Jane'' producer Peter Bart also stresses Miss Fonda's comic touch: "It's great to have her back doing comedy. You know, it's been 10 years since she did 'Barefoot in the Park." Bart said Miss Fonda's political involvements haven't hurt her within the film busi-"She gets as many scripts as anyone. She is paid as much per picture as Streisand or Minnelli.''

THERE WAS a break in the filming of the scene in which Miss Fonda and Segal decide once and for all to become robbers. It's played out in their upstairs bathroom, one that by now is full of items from her list.

"No, I don't think this is saying people ought to become robbers, she said.

"No, the film is a sophisticated black comedy that's really a sendup of certain values in American life. What happens at the end of the picture is that the couple, mainly because they're white and middle class, become culture heroes, like John Dean and Mo did. They're criminals; but they become famous, they get

"IT DEPENDS on whose spirit. Some politician should get on televi-sion and ask the president of Exxon, for example, or the head of ITT, if he feels an $800,000 yearly salary is really necessary for him to maintain his enterprising spirit, especially in a period of economic trouble. The kind of enterprising spirit I admire is the kind Thomas Paine and Thomas Jefferson and the people who led the American Revolution 200 years ago had."

Her answers were beginning to have a sameness about them. I won dered if being the political Jane Fonda was wearisome to her.

'No, not at all. It used to be a problem when I was making movies like 'Barbarella.' Those were the days when women were supposed to be beautiful and sexy and very popular," she said, playfully batting her cyclashes. "It was hard to be that. There was a part of me that never felt comfortable with that.

Banker outlines economic booster

By RALPH HINMAN Jr. Staff Writer

an's no-growth expost market of recent recession years "is com-ing to life in 1976" — and Long Beach could become Southern California's major port of entry for this expanding trade.
This was the gist of a two-part message deliver-ed by a non-Japanese officerfof a Japanese bank to business leaders attending a Long Beach Chamber of Commerce breakfast meeting this week.

And K.A. (Gus) Conto, a vice president of the Los Angeles-based Japan California Bank, left few doubts that he believes the formation here of a Foreign Trade Zone (FTZ) could be a major step forward in the city's continuing efforts to create more private enterprise jobs for its people while achieving higher levels of economic stability.

CONTO, 45, born of Greek immigrant parents in New York City, noted that Long Beach presently is readying an application to the federal government for a 10-acre FTZ in the proposed Westside Industrial Park.

That is a progressive step_in the right direction," he said, pointing out that Los Angeles is not a trade zone. "With proper trade zone. "With proper planning and support, you may find the 10-acres aren't enough.

"You have available, not only your own air terminal, but Los Angeles International Airport, which is served by major air freight forwarders. Long Beach has its own port, of course, and the Port of Los Angeles is nearby. And L.A. is not a trade zone — which works to your benefit."

Numerous benefits accrue to business firms with Foreign Trade Zones available to them, he said. Among these is the right to land and store imports without making immedi-

Conto's Japaneseowned, California-chartered state bank possibly is unique in its independence of big Japanese banks. Formed two years ago and based in downtown Los Angeles, it is wholly owned by 32 major corporations, including Hitachi, Sony, Kawasaki, Toyota and Mitsubishi.

DISCUSSING recent economic history and what it portends for 1976, Conto said "business activity in Japan has been stagnant since it was hard hit by the credit squeeze and oil shock of 1974."

Presently, however, "We are looking at Japa-nese foreign capital investment restarting in the second half of 1976.

Japanese world trade increased about 15 per cent in 1975 to a total of nearly $67 billion as compared to $59 billion in 1974. Imports in 1975 increased only 12 per cent, to $60.1 billion, leaving Japan with a trade surplus of almost $7 billion in 1975.

Paradoxically, said, this seemingly satisfactory situation created its own problems.

mands have not materialized as anticipated," said. Consequently, logically then, "the 1975 record of Japanese private capital investment was non-productive. Factory sales, a ba-rometer of the state of investments, declined in each quarter last year, he said.

"There are bright spots on the horizon," Conto averred, "and there are signs that 1976 will be the year of recovery and nor-malization. Of particular interest are signs that Japan's export trade is showing signs of recovery."

He pointed out that "Japan is America's sec-ond largest trading part-(after Canada); and that California is Japan's largest trading partner and the largest single investor in the California economy.

In the future, he predicted, many Japanese banks increasingly will enter the U.S. venture capital market, acting as partners with selected industries. Japanese banks may be expected to lead the way, bringing with them wealthy new industries.

We hope to aid in attracting foreign investment and thus add to employment and the economic stability of our areas" in California, said Conto. "You will find other Japapese banks with similar inclinations" — although none presently are located in Long Beach.

FTZs ARE yet another inducement to such development. And in the city of Long Beach, "where the U.S. Navy's withdrawal drew heavily on your economic situation, there has been a void - which can be filled if you choose to become the major Southern California port of entry" for world trade.

"That decision is yours, and that of your citizens,' concluded Conto.

Petrolane scholarships

David Pitt, left, and Deborah Vogel are congratulated by John C. Wallace, president of Petrolane, as the first winners of fouryear scholarships given by the Long Beach-based firm- 34th largest in the state. Pitt, a Millikan graduate, will study English and music at Long Beach State. Miss Vogel, of Corona del Mar, plans to be a doctor and will attend Radcliff. The awards were for Petrolane employes' children based on the top scores from National Merit Scholarship Program tests. Pitt's father is district surveyor for the Eastman-Whipstock subsidiary. Miss Vogel's mother is a Raleigh Hills Hospital nurse in Newport Beach—one of seven Petrolane alcoholic treatment facilities.

Industry Week

Go after that raise if you deserve it

CLEVELAND - Most managers say if you think you deserve a raise you should step forward and ask for it. But few of them are willing to do so themselves, Industry Week said

The subject of raises is highly delicate, the magazine for managers finds. The majority of managers contacted by the magazine say they have never asked for a raise. Others have, but aren't willing to relate their experiences for the record.

So if you are among those who never have asked for a raise, Industry Week believes you're part of the "silent majority.

And managers cite several reasons why reluctance to ask for a raise exists.

ONE INHIBITOR is that in many companies salary structures are rigid-ly defined and people are likely to be familiar with the guidelines, criteria, and review procedures through which raises are given.

Other factors, including frequent changes of jobs, responsibilities, or location tend to minimize the times when employees think about asking for a raise.

But perhaps most important, suggests Industry Week, is that when the subject is money there is always a certain nervousness. "You can see they're uneasy about it. They probably have stayed awake several nights thinking about it," says one manager.

THIS MANAGER is typical of many. When he realizes the topic of conversation is going to be money, he tries to put the person at ease. He understands that it's a struggle for anyone in the middle class to maintain some distance between his level of buying power and encroaching inflation, so he tries to "really listen."

One manager acknowledges that "each person has to get in there and Indeed, he admires the person who comes forward, convinced that he is worth more than he is being paid. And because he believes there is a tendency by management to hold the line on salaries, he recognizes that a person may well deserve more or deserve it sooner.

But he does add that he won't respond to a request for a raise "automatically," explains Industry Week. The more valuable a person is, the more likely he is to compromise.

THAT MEANS when you're asking for a raise it helps to have a winning recard and to be ready to detail your acc mplishments. For when the subiec is raises, to a man the managers interiewed say they dislike beating d the bush.

Anderson backs fair rates

In testimony before the South Bay to Long Beach House Subcommittee on Merchant Marine, Congressman Glenn M. Anderson (D-Harbor City) has urged passage of a bill aimed at maintaining competition among house hold goods forwarders seeking contracts with the military.

Anderson, chief sponsor for the measure, pointed out that the government was the largest single shipper of household goods in the world.

'For example," the representative said, "last year household goods forwarders were responsible for the successful movement of over 348,000 shipments of household goods for members of military

"For over 50 per cent of the companies, this represents 90 to 95 per cent of their business. Thus, we are speaking about 33 of the 64 companies, in this business, and these 33 are the smaller companies.'

THE BILL, HR 8849. gives the Federal Maritime Commission jurisdiction over international shipments of household goods. Under Anderson's legislation, shipping rates must be filed with the FMC 30 days before use by a government agency.

Protests may be filed if interested parties feel the rates are unfair

The requirements would not apply if qualified carriers interested in meeting competitive rates are not excluded from the traffic for more than 30

Customer service key to airlines' success?

By JANE SCHOLZ Knight News Service

Do the mistakes made by the thousands of "little people" who work for a major airline— like the baggage handler who carelessly puts a Los Angeles-bound passenger's luggage on a New York flight have a measurable impact on the profits of their multi-million dollar employer?

Based on a comparison of airline profits and passenger complaints, a management consultant contends that they do: but some airline executives are skeptical of his findings.

COMPARING PROFITS for the nation's 10 major air carriers with complaints received by the federal Civil Aeronautics Board, Dennis L. Johnson, a Chicago management consultant, concluded that there's a link between efficient, courteous service and airline profits.

Trans World Airlines, Northwest, Pan Am and American—the four airlines that had the highest passenger-complaint ratios, ranging from 4.11 to 6.53 complaints per 100,000 passengers—had combined losses of $100 million in 1975, Johnson found, while the six carriers with the lowest complaint ratio—from 2.13 to 3.85 per 100,000 passengers—had combined losses of $1.7 million last year.

losses of $1.7 million last year.
"It is especially significant that two of the three airlines registering the most complaints (TWA and Pan-Am) also registered the worst losses for all airlines in 1975—$86.3 million and $46.1 million, respectively." Johnson said.

respectively. Johnson said.

Johnson contended that the willingness of an airline's "front-line personnel," like ticket agents, flight attendants and baggage handlers, to offer efficient service with a smile accounts for much of the variation in the airlines' financial and complaint

"THERE'S REALLY no price difference among airlines these days- they all have the same planes, and many fly the same routes. Service is the only distinguishing characteristic that brings the passenger back or turns him off, "Johnson said.

When he talks about service, Johnson said, he doesn't necessarily mean pampering passengers with champagne and in-flight movies.

"The complaints received by the CAB generally deal with routine kinds of things like overbooking, lost baggage and performance of flight attendants,"

Johnson cited Eastern Airlines, which put a new emphasis on passenger service in the past year, as "In 1973 Eastern had the second-worst

passenger-complaint record of the major airlines (8.21 complaints per 100,000 passengers) and the second-worst loss record of all 10 major airlines; but, by 1975, with a revamped consumer-service attitude, complaints dropped to 3.58 per 100,000 passengers, while losses were reduced almost a third," Johnson

Not all Eastern employes agree that it's corporate emphasis on being nice to passengers that's improved customer relations, however.
"What's made the difference is that the relations between management and labor have loosened up in the last year or so," a long-time Eastern stewardess said. "As management started easing up on some of the rules, morale started improving; and I think that's what caused the improvement in customer

AT DELTA AIR LINES, a consistent industry profit leader, which regularly ranks low in passenger complaints, executives feel that there may be some validity to Johnson's findings.

"I think service and employe attitude have got to have something to do with it (profits)," Joseph Meyer, assistant vice-president for customer affairs, "We've ber i reminding our employes for 40 years that we'e not selling cars or soft drinks—we're selling s vice," he said.

Officials some airlines argue, however that no clear-cut red donship between passenger complaints and profit dels has been shown.

For the thing, they charge that the CAB com-plaint fiveres don't reflect the way most air travelers leel ab ut airline service.

'some parts of the nation are heavily over-rer esented among those complaints," Richard D. Land, Eastern's director of consumer affairs, said.

"THE WASHINGTON-New York-Boston Corridor seems to produce more complaints historically than any other part of the country, and that means that carriers which serve the Northast receive a disproportionate share of complaints," he said.

Jack Yohe, consumer advocate for the CAB,

which has been keeping track of passenger com-plaints since 1971, said travelers in the Washingtonto-Boston area do complain more than those from that's unfair to airlines that serve the Northeast.
"Even among airlines that fly the same routes in the Northeast, numbers of complaints vary greatly, Yohe said. "And airline service areas overlap so much that I don't believe the geographical spread If complaints is unfair to any one carrier.

The profitability of any airline depends largely on many aspects of operation that have no direct effect on passengers—like numbers of aircraft in service, employe productivity, fare levels and the cost of labor and fuel," Mike Clark, public relations manager at National Airlines, said.

"We look at customer service as one of the keys to success," Clark said, "but we don't think any meaningful comparison can be made between complaint ratios and profits."

Early gain wiped out

Profit-taking curbs market

The stock market was nixed Friday, getting tan-gled up once again in profit-taking just beyond he 1,000 level in the Dow ones industrial average. The widely followed verage of 30 blue chips average of 30 blue chips built up a 6-point gain in the early going, but was off 1.31, at 1,001.88, by the close. Nevertheless, it finished the week with a net advance of 23.08 points—its best weekly showing since late March.

Gainers held on for an 8-5 edge on losers in the

5 edge on losers in the laily tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed

Big Board volume was neavy at the outset, but ettled down thereafter nd wound up at 25.72 milion shares, down from 7.81 million Thursday. Nationwide turnover in NYSE-listed issues, in-rluding trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the overhe-counter market, came o 29.21 million shares as of the close in New York. The session began with buyers showing more of the enthusiasm that help-ed carry the Dow up 14.57 points and through the 1,000 level in Thursday's ictivity. Brokers said investors had been encouraged by the decline in the basic measure of the money supply reported in weekly statistics issued by the Federal Reserve at Thursay's close. Such a decline theoreti-ally means less pressure in the Fed to tighten redit, and therefore was favorable portent for interest rates.

But by mid-morning, the market slipped back into a pattern that has become very familiar to investors on the Dow's six previous runs past 1,000 this year With the average close to the 1,010 level, traders began taking profits, evidently convinced that the market wasn't ready to break past its previous 1976 closing high of 1,-011.02 reached on April 21.

Standard & Poor's 500stock index rose .15 to 103.76, and the NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks picked up .12 to 55.29.

American Telephone & Telegraph was the day's most active issue, down a . fraction after a gain of more than a point on million-share offering by the company was declared jumped shead after a 12 oversubscribed.

American S&L due Seal Beach branch

NEW YORK (A) - In late August, Jim Hartz will turn over the studio end of hosting NBC's
"Today" show to Tom Brokaw and go on the road as what NBC calls the "traveling cohost" of the two-hour program. In some circles, this is called a massive shakeup, as the show, suffering ratings sag and the much-publicized adios of Barba-ra Walters, tries to refurbish its appearance and get those ratings up and viewers back. For Hartz, cohost of "Today" almost two years, it's one of the haz-ards of the job. But he says it's also the chance to do something he's wanted to do — knock around the United States doing for "Today" the kind of human interest stories the

'Windfalls' ease county budget tax crunch

Supervisors Friday wrapped up public hearings on the county's pro-posed $3.2 billion budget for 1976-77 and set Monday at 10:30 a.m. for the start of their own deliberations.

While the board Friday continued hearing complaints about pro-posed health cuts totaling about 538.5 million, there were several indications the financial crunch would not be as bad as expected when supervisors begin their trimming job Monday.

In a budget adjustment filed with the board, Chief Administrative Officer Harry Hufford said general fund requirements now will be $1.4 million lower than expected and should offer a slight cut in the

ous programs would free some million in reserve money,

reducing the projected tax rate by another 4.8 cents.

Hufford's preliminary budget had been based on the expectation the property values throughout the county would increase by 10 per cent next year. However, there were recent indications to show the overall reassessment would jump by at least 12 per cent and, should that be the case, the projected tax rate increase could be lopped by about another seven cents.

Some unexpected state Short-

Doyle money for federal health programs would free a further $6 million, according to officials. This would mean a tax rate reduction of about 2 cents.

Overall, the budget adjust-ments and improved revenue situa-tion have the effect of freeing a total of about $25 million, officials

However, the supervisors Thursday practically committed $9 million in subsidies for lowered bus fares which had not been included in Hufford's preliminary budget.

The net effect would result in about $16.5 million remaining free to help restore proposed health service cuts amounting to more than $38.5 million.

Among speakers at Friday's bearing were persons protesting the proposed closure of El Cerrito Health Services Center in Long Beach and a plan to convert Long Beach General Hospital from an inpatient hospital to an outpatient

Speakers said if these plans went into effect, hundreds of poor patients would have no other place to go. Supervisor James Hayes said he had received hundreds of letters from the Long Beach area in the past few weeks and vowed he would fight to keep the two Long Beach facilities intact.

Other supervisors, too, after being barraged with pleas to re-store the proposed health cuts, have indicated restoration will be one of their top priorities in the budget-setting process.

L.B. teachers turn down 'final' 5 per cent raise

By WALT MURRAY Staff Writer

A "final" offer of a 5 per cent pay hike was rejected Friday by teacher representatives in salary talks with Long Beach Unified School District officials.

Marvin Langlois, chairman of the teachers' Certificated Employes Council, said he thinks the Board of Education will act unilaterally to set 1976-77 salaries at Monday's board meeting.

District officials are scheduled to make their salary recommendations to the board on Monday. The board has traditionally acted on salaries by the second or third week in June.

In their meeting the teachers held firm in asking for a 10 per cent pay hike, Langlois said. They voted 6-1 to turn down the board's 5 per cent offer.

Langlois said the offer included continuation of present fringe benefits, which the teachers had asked

A request by Children's Center teachers for salary parity with classroom teachers was turned down, Langlois said. It would have taken a 25 per cent pay hike to bring about parity.

Langlois said the board's representatives indicated that they wanted to settle the salary issue quick-ly, since summer school starts next

In rejecting the board offer, the CEC representative from the Professional Educators of Long Beach was the lone dissenter, Lan-glois said. He said PELB wanted to Further meetings between dis-trict officials and the CEC were not scheduled, Langlois said.

The two groups have been meeting under "meet and confer" provisions of the Winton Act, which will expire when the state's new collective-bargaining law goes in effect July 1.

But negotiations under the new law cannot begin until an election has been held in which teachers pick which organization they want to represent them. That can't occur until next fall, Langlois said.

The district is expected to set up a way for each of three teacher organizations to represent its members in the period between July 1 and the time when collective bargaining begins.

Public hearings possible on L.B. supertanker terminus

By JACK O. BALDWIN

The Army Corps of Engineers, if requested, will hold a public hearing to consider the possible impact of construction of a $35-40 million, three-berth supertanker termi-nal in the Long Beach Outer Har-

The concrete-topped, deep-draft terminal would be built south of Pier J by the Long Beach Harbor Department for use by Standard Oil of Ohio (Sohio). The company has selected Long Beach as the terminus for crude oil from the Alaskan North Slope fields. When oil production reaches its peak sometime in 1978, approximately 700,000 barrels are expected to be unloaded every other day at the Long Beach facility.

LT. COL. Robert H. Reinen, deputy district engineer, said a public hearing would be held if any person whose interests may be atfected adversely by the issuance of a permit, requests a hearing in writing.

APPROXIMATELY 600,000 cubic yards of bottom material is to be dredged and deposited inside the rock dike breakwater. An additional one million yards of sandy material would be deposited either in an approved, adjacent project site or at the offshore federal dumpsite.

The oil off-loading facilities are to be installed on the concrete-topped wharves. A 48-inch-diameter pipeline will carry the crude to North Long Beach, from where the oil will be distributed to Southern California refineries. According to the new plan, the bus company will seek about $11 million of that money from the federal Urban Mass Transportation Administration (UMTA). Most of the balance will come from state sales tax.

A major expenditure during the period, which ends with the 1979-80 fiscal year, will be for a proposed downtown transportation center, which will cost an estimated $11 million, of which UMTA is expected to provide $2 to $3 million.

The original five-year program, developed for the quasipublic ny ny toe city's Transporta tion Management Department, was submitted to UMTA last year and was approved conditionally pending the receipt of "backup documentation," according to King Cushman, director of transportation manage-

"We view crime as the tip of an iceberg," Ricks said. "Below the surface lie poverty, racism and other social problems, but they are no excuse for burglary and criminal use of firearms.

Ricks noted that juveniles are handled by a different court and would not face the tougher policy set by the Compton Municipal Court. "But we hope to influence all nearby jurisdictions," he said.

Members of the six-man Compton court stressed that each case will receive individual attention and the court will consider special "extenuating circumstances." Unless such special circumstances can be shown, "persons convicted of these offenses will suffer some

Asked what kind of circumstances are "extenuating," Ricks said one example might be a gun found in a stopped car but which was unloaded and belonged to a responsible citizen.

We will consider the person's background. Jail terms aren't the answer to every case," he con-

Reginald Cobb, executive officer of the court, suggested that a person who can argue that he needs a weapon for protection, such as a graveyard-shift liquor-store clerk or a security guard who carries more weapons than he is legally entitled to, might not receive a jail term if a weapon is found during a traffic stop and not during the commission of a crime.

State law requires that a se-curity guard must unload his weapon and keep it in open view when he is not on duty.
"We want people to know

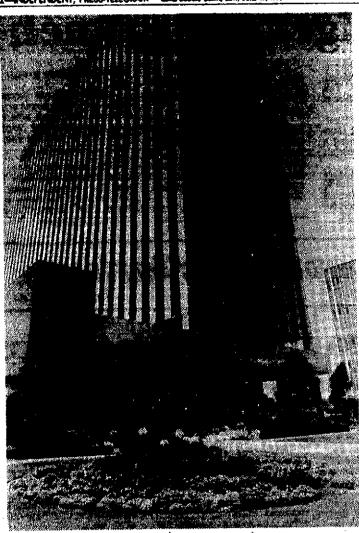

there's a new ball game down here," Cobb said. "They are going to know in advance that they will serve jail time if they are found guilty of carrying illegal firearms.'

Ricks expressed satisfaction with the 12-story Justice Building under construction as part of new civic center near Acacia Street and Alondra Boulevard in Compton. The center includes a new library, city hall and police station.

"With the help of the new building, and with our new policy on burgiary and firearms possession, we will be in very improved posi-tion to combat crime," he said.

The tree-climbing philodendron

The disease is brought on

By 30E LITTLEFIELD

Philodendron pertusum (Monstera) is an American tropical, vine-like plant. The mature plants have leaves which are lobed with some holes in them, presenting interesting pattern designs.

The white calla-like flower is supported by a central upright six-to-eight inches long by about two inches thick spadix. It is shaped somewhat like a huskless ear of corn. The internal spadix area is comprised of colorless, jelly-like, sweet tasting fruits. Two mouthfuls is about all a human can eat, because the fruit is so extremely sweet, perhaps the sweetest of any fruits ever tasted

The outside part of the spadix is comprised of seeds similar to corn. As it ripens, the seeds gradually separate exposing the jelly-like fruit.

A dentist friend grew these plants which climbed the base of oak trees at his ranch. He harvested the partially ripening fruit gave them to his patients as a special treat.

Not all of this type of plant bears annually. They can be grown outdoors in partial shade, but must be protected from frost. Grown indoors, they may be trained to a pole. They may not easily be found at all nurseries.

IVY LEAF geraniums, ground cover that have nearly finished blooming, should be lightly trimmed back and the faded blooms cut off. The planting should be fed a day or two after the area has been thoroughly watered. Feed-ing them with pellet sized fertilizer stimulates more growth, and very possibly produce a second crop of flowers. The pellet fertilizer feeds slowly and longer.

Ivy leaf geranium ground cover, like the heavily matted ivy ground cover, is susceptible to oedema, a bacterial disease. Symptoms on the WISE IS THE gardener leaves are small circular, slightly raised swellings.

by keeping the ground cover planting area too moist all the time. The old leaves that die will catch on the lower runner branches because they can't filter down to the soil. Those old leaves, if kept damp like moist dish rags, plus lack of sun-light and air circulation,

Oedema can be avoided if the gardener waters the planting area only when the soil gets really dry. One of the symptoms of dryness is to observe the mature foliage. (If young tender leaves are limp it could mean heat is affecting them). Slightly limp mature leaves indicates forms an excellent condi-

Did you know you can actually damage the struc-ture of the soil in your garden by working it be-fore it's ready?

The eager gardener, itching to start digging as soon as the first clear spring day dawns, should use a time-tested method for determining the readiness of the soil for spading and planting.

The method suggested by the American Association of Nurserymen is this: take a handful of soil and squeeze it into a ball. If it sticks like a mud ball the ground is too wet and gardener should wait until conditions are drier.

The soil should be soak-ed at least eight inches in depth, then no more for perhaps two to three weeks, depending upon the

Shade gardens give sanctuary

When summer comes, a gardener's best friend is his shade garden. A shady garden is soothing, re-freshing, spirit lifting and provides a refuge from the unrelenting glare of noonday sun.

A patch of shade does not make a shade garden. There's a big difference between shade from a Live Oak on a barren foot-hill slope and the shade you find in a city park or beside à rushing stream. One gives you only brief respite while the other provides a sanctuary from

To increase summer living pleasure, then, it is most important to plan and plant your shade with care. For gardening under the cool sombreros of large trees, seek plant material such as Ferns that create cooling illusions, and don't besitate to use any garden accessory that enhances the situation.

A sure and effective way to garden in shade is with plenty of water. Ferns, Fuchsias, Hydrangeas, Begonias and many other shade loving plants are usually at their best with frequent watering. Furthermore, the water itself is another cooling agent and helps complete the shade refuge. Use a fogging-type nozzle on your hose, or fix a permanent one to a sprinkler head. Its mist spray will be appreciated by you and your plants alike

If you dream of running water in your summer sanctuary, ask your nurseryman about small circulating pumps and water basins. Surround these basins (or other water bowls) with Baby's Tears, Ajuga or Potentilla or a similiar carpet-like ground cover to further enhance the atmosphere. With such companions to share your shade, you can stand almost any degree of heat that's likely to come your way.

Wages going up fastest in West

WASHINGTON (AP) - Wages of workers in the western United States have risen faster in the past six months than elsewhere in the nation, a Labor Department report said Friday.

Workers in the West received pay increases totaling about 5.5 per cent during the six-month period ending in March. Workers in the Northeast, meanwhile, experienced the lowest gains, 2.4 per cent.

In-between were the South, up 3.9 per cent, and the North Central region, up 3.7 per cent. Nationwide, wage and salary rates increased 3.8 per cent during the

But it didn't make much difference whether the job was in a city or in a smaller community. Wages of workers in metropolitan areas rose 3.8 per cent, while those in nonmetropolitan areas increased 3.7 per cent.

Blue-collar wages rose faster than white-collar pay For example, managers and administrators gained 2.6 per cent, while laborers received increases of 4.5 per cent and service workers, 5.3 per cent.

WAGES AND salaries in manufacturing industries rose 4 per cent, and in transportation and public utili-ties, 4.6 per cent. Wholesale and retail trade compensation advanced 4.1 per cent.

Information on wage and salary trends are contained in a new Labor Department report that will be released quarterly. The agency said the information on pay trends is the first component in preparing a new Employment Cost Index, which, when fully developed, "a comprehensive measure of changes in both wages and the cost of benefits."

THE NEW INDEX is intended to give the government and economists information that has been lacking on nationwide pay trends, similar to the kind of information now available on prices and employment.

The Labor Department said collection of information on workers' benefits, such as health insurance and retirement plans, will begin later in the year.

The agency gave a breakdown on nationwide pay trends for the past two quarters. Wages and salaries advanced 1.8 per cent in the three months ending in December, 1975, and 1.9 per cent in the quarter ending

WASHINGTON - The growth in the nation's total output of goods and services, the Gross Na-tional Product, is likely to slow substantially in the current quarter to an annual rate well under 5 per cent, government economists said Friday.

This assessment came as the Commerce Department revised slightly up-ward the annual rate of growth in the GNP for the first quarter, from 8.5 per cent to 8.7 per cent. Corporate profits in the first grarter were also revised upward. Practically all economic forecasts have projected a moderation in GNP growth in the second quarter as compared with the torrid nace of the first. But now it appears that this slowdown will be much more marked than the "consensus" forecast

ISO FAR, there appears to be no sense of alarm or deep concern in the gov-ernment about this prospect. But one official said Friday, "I can't help feeling just a little uneasy."

Only last week Alan Greenspan, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, told the congressional Joint Economic Committee that the administration's forecast for the growth of the GNP for the year as a whole was likely to be revised upward to around 7 per cent, compared with 6.2 per cent forecast in January. The new indications of much slower growth in the second quarter may cause another shift in the forecast for the full year, possibly back toward 6 per

The chief reason for the sharp reduction in the current quarter is the recent trend in consumer spending. After growing strongly and leading the economy out of the recession, consumer outlays — as measured by retail sales — flattened in April and declined a little in May.

Home remedies heal the pocketbook the unnecessary visits and you save almost $150.

By LOUISE COOK Associated Press

Consumers faced with soaring medical bills can save at least $100 a year by cutting out some visits to the doctor and learning when to rely on home remedies instead, according to two physicians.

The doctors also say that contrary to popular belief, most people do not an elaborate and expensive medical checkup every year.

The Council on Wage and Price Stability report-ed recently that health care costs went up 10.3 per cent last year. Other service items in the Consumer Price Index went up 7.7 per cent.
The council also said the average American spent $547, or almost 10 per cent of his income, on health care in 1975.

Dr. James F. Fries, coauthor of "Take Care of Yourself: A Consumer's Guide to Medical Care," says that the average family of four now sees the doctor 12 times a year. The average cost of the visit is $35, for an annual expenditure of $420. And that's just for doctor's bills.

Fries and his coauthor, Dr. Donald M. Vickery, estimate that two-thirds to three-fourths of the visits eight or nine trips turn out to be unneces-

"An unproductive visit

is a source of frustration both ways," he said, adding that, too often, physicians wind up prescribing medicines that aren't real-ly needed. "We've simply put in a usable form what everybody agrees on," Fries said. The advice "is the same as you'll get if you call any emergency

FBI chief gets U.S. 'derelict', plea in Angola defense 'tick threat'

By ROBERT REINHOLD New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — The FBI disclosed Friday that Director Clarence M. Kelley has received a threatening letter containing dead ticks similar to ones sent to various business executives this week.

The ticks, said by the accompanying letters to carry dangerous disease, were found to be harmless in laboratory tests conducted by the FBI.

The Kelley ticks lent a bizarre new twist to what the bureau has described as a plot to extort millions of dollars by mail from about 200 American corporations and executives under threat of terrorism. Eighteen letter bombs have been received around the country this week. One has exploded, slightly injuring four employees Monday at a New York office of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc., the stock brokers.

IN ADDITION, A NUMBER of letters with similar markings and threats but containing ticks have arrived in Colorado, New York and Oklahoma. In Tulsa, Post-master Leon T. Alexander said three or four letters with ticks were received in his city this week.

"They were just mashed," he told newsmen. "By the time they got through the canceling machine and equipment, they were dead."

Ticks, which are common in wooded areas of this country, are not insects but blood-sucking arachnids related to mites. They burrow under the skin of warmblooded animals, including humans, and fasten themselves with a barbed proboscis. Some species are known to transmit highly label diseases like Peaky Mountain to transmit highly lethal diseases like Rocky Mountain spotted fever.

Kelley's ticks, the source of much merriment at the usually somber FBI headquarters here, arrived with the Wednesday mail. They were addressed personally to the director in a letter postmarked Texarkana, Tex., the origin of many of the other threatening letters and bombs. An FBI spokesman was unable to say exactly how many ticks there were, or whether they had been mached.

TUESDAY, KELLEY HELD A news conference at which he linked the recent bombs to prior threats, dating from last fall, demanding money from corporations under "threat of terrorist tactics." Because they all bore similar markings, the original letters, the bombs and the tick missives are believed to have originated from the same source.

In a statement released Friday, the FBI said the ticks sent to the businessmen were accompanied by letters that "stated that the ticks were carriers of dangerous diseases and posed a threat to the recipients' of these ticks transmitting any infectious diseases to humans are extremely remote.'

Meanwhile an FBI spokesman said "hundreds of leads" were being pursued but that no break in the case was imminent.

Memorial for Yuba City bus victims set

YUBA CITY (AP) Residents in this Northern California town have set up a committee to raise $2 million to build a performing arts center-amphitheater as a memorial to the 29 high school choir members who died in a May 21 bus crash.

Committee chairman Dick Empey said Friday a letter-solicitations a mpaign has begun, and there already is nationwide interest in the project. Empey said high school choirs from across the country are holding car washes and bake sales so they may contribute. Con-tributions may be mailed to the Student Memorial Center for the Performing Arts, P.O. Box 203, Yuba City, Ca., 95991.

LUANDA, Angola (AP) — An American lawyer defending two Vietnam veterans in the trial of 13 white mercenaries, attacked the United States Friday in an effort to save his clients from a firing

Robert Cesner of Columbus, Ohio, told a packed courtroom stunned into silence that the United States was "dere-lict" in its enforcement of laws against fighting for a foreign force as a soldier of fortune.

ALL THE 10 Britons and three American mercenaries on trial ex-cept Costas Georgiou, who calls himself Tony Callan, hung on Cesner's words as he invoked the people's revolution and at times the prosecutor's own words to save them.

With a "plea of clemency in the name of humanity for the dregs of humani-ty." British and American attorneys wound up their defense.

To cries of "death" from spectators and ap-plause by the tribunal's five judges, prosecutor Rui Monteiro earlier demanded death by firing squad for the 13, captured in the last days of the war.

SCOTTISH lawyer Herbert Kerrigan joined Cesner in pointing out that the prosecutor had spent "three hours and 40 minutes detailing Angola's heroic revolutionary strug-gle, but only a few moments referring to the actual evidence against the accused."

Arguing that the mercenaries were pawns of their recruiters, who in turn were "the lackeys of powerful international agencies like the CIA," British lawyer Clive Stanbrook argued that "under the rule of law only on the basis of evidence can a man be condemned to death.

McClure a troublemaker, ex-Marine comrades say

SAN DIEGO (AP) -Witnesses testified Friday that Marine Pvt. Lynn McClure was a trouble-maker who in effect brought on his own fatal pugil-stick fight by antago-

In three days of testimony, mingled with praise for SSgt. Harold Bronson, the prosecution paraded McClure's former buddles to tell why and how they fought him, one by one. Bronson, 30, is the first

Grain firms accused TEMPERATURES of manipulation

WASHINGTON (AP) -Four giant corporations are in a position to manipulate world grain prices by their control of the data used to set the prices, Senate investigators said Friday.

They made public a nine-year-old memo in which an Agriculture Department attache in Europe accused the companies of supplying false data in order to influence pricing decisions.

Staff members of the Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee on multinational corporations, which conducted the investigations, said the companies have denied the allega-

Representatives of the firms — Cargill, Bunge, Continental and Dreyfus — are to testify next week. Reporting on a year-long examination of the complex international grain trade, staff member Richard Gilmore said that every morning the Euro-pean grain exchanges phone the four major grain companies for that day's "lowest offer price" in each Common Market

By custom the "lowest offer price" in Rotterdam, in the Netherlands, becomes the base line on which grain prices around the world are set.

The data is relayed to the grain office of the European Economic Community in Brussels where it is used to set levies, export subsidies and EEC prices, Gilmore said.

The informaton is relayed in turn to the United States, where it is available by the opening of the Chicago grain exchange.

Thus the manipulation of the base data could affect grain prices through-out the world, distort grain markets in the United States and affect adversely the interests of American farmers and consumers, Gilmore said. He said that in the course of the investigation course of the investigation he uncovered a Feb. 9, 1967 memo by Alan W. Trick, then the Agriculture Department's attache in Hamburg, West Germay. He now holds a similar position at the U.S. embassy in Moscow.

burg grain exchange. Tricks said in the memo that a major source of errors "involves false reporting ..."

"This intentionally deceptive reporting, which occurs frequently, is done to influence applicable EEC levies, to increase or decrease them according to the desires of the reporter.'

He said there is always the possibility that "we are fed prices which are intentionally high or low in an effort to affect U.S. subsidy or sales price actions or for other reasons.

Trick said he believed this did not always happen in the case of wheat, because of the amount of double checking by Agriculture Department aides.

"But in the case of rice prices and sales we constantly feel that one or two of our sources are trying to what we call 'whipsaw

-Story on Page A-10

WASHINGTON (AP) — A proposed voluntary association of House members would provide an outlet for women employes who want to complain about hugging, kissing and pinching by their bosses, a Colorado congresswoman said Friday.

Democratic Rep. Patricia Schroeder, joined by Rep. Charles Rose, D-N.C., said they will ask their colleagues to sign up for the Employe Rights Committee. Mrs. Schroeder said it would give a young woman employe a place to take a complaint she might have against her boss.

"MANY YOUNG staff women" complain to her about what they feel are problems with their bosses "because they don't have anywhere to go," Mrs. Schroeder said.

She gave as an example the former Doorkeeper of the House William "Fishbait" Miller, who she said often went around "grabbing and pinching and kissing them — me too."

She said she would tell him, "Fishbait, that may have been how you did things years ago but that's not the way it's done now.'

"IT PROBABLY wasn't intentional" on his part, she said, but more of a generation gap problem between older members of the House who don't know how to handle a one-to-one relationship with young women professionals. Mrs. Schroeder and Rose said their effort, which they will take to their colleagues at a meeting Tucsday, would be just a start to overcome working conditions that offer Capitol Hill employes little in the way of job rights. THOSE WHO voluntarily join the group would be subject to binding arbitration on employe grievances that are not resolved before that point. The committee was endorsed earlier Friday by the Capitol Hill Women's Caucus.

Howe says he won't resign

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) - Rep. Allan T. Howe said Friday that talking to two decoy prostitutes was a "most foolish mistake," but he said he did not try to buy sex from them and he will not resign from the House.

Howe said he will seek re-election and "I suspect there will be many people who will rally to my cause."

The 48-year-old Utah Democrat said his re-elec-tion bid "will be a most difficult thing," but he added,"I am simply and without equivocation innocent of these charges."

At a news conference here. Howe revealed that he was excommunicated from the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormon) 25 years ago for a sex incident while he was a Mormon missionary. He declined to elaborate and said he was later reinstated to the church in good standing.

HOWE SAID he considered a suggestion by Mormon Church President Spencer W. Kimball that he think about resigning, but decided to finish out his term and seek re-elec-

He sald the police account of his conversa-tion with the decoy prosti-tutes was false, and that his constitutional rights were "gravely endanger-ed" by release of the transcript, which quoted him as telling the decoys he usually paid $20 for sex acts and had been with other girls before.

BUT HOWE declined to discuss details of the conversation with the decoys prior to his arrest by a vice squad officer last Saturday night. He said be had been "tried and con-victed in the news media" and would not discuss matters of evidence.

Howe has said he went to the area, which is known for prostitution, be-cause a man said a car would lead him to a politi-cal function. The decoys were in a car when he talked to them.

Only two escaped.

🤔 Ambulance alert

NEW ORLEANS — The fact that two ambulances exploded in flames within minutes of each other has prompted a nationwide alert from the company that makes the vehicles. Edward Talty, vice president of Sheller-Globe Corp. of Toledo, Ohio, said the company has asked owners of all their ambulances to have the gas tanks checked immediately. It is not a recall, Talty said, but an alert.

Honor investigation

WASHINGTON - The chairman of the House Armed Services Committee has called for a blue-ribbon investigation of the bonor code at West Point and the nation's two other service academies. Rep. Melvin Price, D-III., asked for the investigation in a letter to Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld. He urged that a panel be formed from academic, legal and military communities.

Bomb kills police chief

BUENOS AIRES - A terrorist bomb planted in his bedroom killed the chief of Argentina's national police Friday as Argentina's national police Chief Cesareo wipe them out. Police Chief Cesareo Angel Cardozo, a 50-year-old army general on active duty, died instantly. Cardozo's mother, wife and a 12-year-old Haughter in adjoining rooms of the famiis s luxury apartment also were injured by the blast. Police said they believed the bomb had been placed between the matfress and spring of Cardoza's bed by Ana Maria Gonzalez, a close teen-age girl-friend of Cardoza's elder daughter. There were conflicting reports of whether Miss Gonzalez was in custody. Cardozo, a career infantry officer named to the police post last March 31, was the second chief of the Argentine federal police murdered by terrorists in the past 19 months.

Bilingual dispute

OTTAWA -- Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Elliot Trudeau Friday said the government will go to federal court to seek an order blocking a threatened nationwide strike by air traffic controllers. The controllers are protesting a government proposal to use French as well as the English language in control towers at some Quebec Province airports. Quebec is almost totally populated by French speakers. Trudeau told the legislature he found it incredible that the union would strike against bilingualism, but union leaders said they objected to the use of French on grounds of safety. In Europe, English and local languages, are used interchangeably.

Unelectable

First Lady Betty Ford says she believes a woman would make a capable vice president but could not be elected.
"It's not that a woman is not qualified to do the job," she said in an interview published Friday in Women's Wear Daily. "I just don't think a woman vice president would be elected."

Asked about a likely running mate for Presi-dent Ford if he captures the Republican nomination, Mrs. Ford said she favored a man from the layored a man from the South. She mentioned Sens. Howard Baker and William Brock, both of Tennessee, as "particularly able." But she avoided comment when asked about former Texas Gov. John Connelly. John Connally.

Bail

District Court Judge Frank Gregory said Friday in Virginia City, Nev., that it is his under-standing brothel owner Joe Conforte plans to use his "Cabin in the Sky" restaurant as collateral to raise $250,000 bail for the man charged with killing boxer Oscar Bonavena.

"I am told that the de-fense intends to offer the restaurant for the bail," Gregory said.

Willard Ross Brymer, 31, Conforte's former se-curity guard, is charged in the May 22 slaying of the Argentine beavyweight.

A Irleud of mine cented an apartment from California Real Estale investment, 336 E. 17th St.? Costa Mesa, in November and paid $125 for the lirst mouth's rent, $125 for the last month and a $50 cleaning fee. He was to move in four days later, but when the time came he was told the girl who was living there was still occupying it. A few days later a representative of the investment firm said she couldn't tell him when he could move in. He asked for a refund and was told if he paid for the newspaper ad for the apartment she would mall him the balance of his money. On Dec. 8 he was told the firm was charging him for 42 days' rent plus the cost of running an ad for 42 days. The total was $254.94. He hasn't even received a refund for the balance of his $300. He speaks very little English and needs your help. M.D., Anahelm.

We weren't able to help. Jim Mains of California Real Estate denied that the apartment was occupied when your friend was due to move in. He said only cleaning supplies were there and that he took your friend through the apartment to show him it was vacant. He said your friend changed his mind about renting the apartment, so his firm was justified in charging rent for 42 days and for the newspaper ads because they "turned down 14 people who were told the place was rented." He also promised to refund the $50 cleaning fee your friend paid. In spite of several more calls from Action Line, your your friend never got any money back. He might wish to pursue the matter through small claims court.

Probe ousts Ford guard

A Secret Service agent who occasionally guarded President Ford has been fired following an investigation into missing Treasury Department ammunition later found in the possession of a convicted murderer.

The dismissal of agent Fred Nagel of Los Alamitos came as a "result of an investigation of missing ammunition." said Robert Powis, chief of the Secret Service office here.

Powis refused further comment.

Nagel was fired Tuesday following a 30-day suspension during the probe.

He is the only federal officer known to be caught in a series of law enforcement dismissals and ment dismissals and reprimands surrounding a San Bernardino and Orange counties murder case.

Special government issue pistol ammunition, brought to a Seal Beach Naval tire range by Nagel allegedly ended up in the possession of Richard Waissman

Waissman was convicted earlier this year of two execution-style slayings in the desert area of San Bernardino County. The ammunition apparently was taken to Waissman by California Highway Patrolman Dennis Carter who also shot at the Seal Beach range, said law en-forcement officials close to the case.

Carter later was fired by the Highway Patrol and is involved in legal action to regain his job.

There is no indication that the stolen ammunition was used in the two murders, but is believed to have been sold at various local gun shops.

Waissman, a former doorman and bouncer at the Playgirl Club in Garden Grove, was one of three men convicted in the murder of Treasury De-partment informant John Gressmann and security guard Norman Olsey, both of whom were part-time employes at the nightclub.

The other two convicted in the case were Donald Blansett, the former club manager, and Marine Sgt. Luke Austin, also a part-time club security guard.

Machine gun stolen from Secret Service

NEWPORT BEACH (AP) — Secret Service agents guarding President Ford's son Steve as he dined at a beach city restaurant carlier this year had a machine gun stolen from the trunk of a car, according to the Santa Ana Register. The Israeli designed Uzi machine pistol apparently was taken from the car while it was parked at Bobby McGee's Conglomeration Restaurant on Pacific Coast Highway last February.

The compact machine gun bolds a 40-round magazine of 9-millimeter ammunition, fires at a rate of 650 rounds per minute and is considered one of the most sophisticated combat weapons in the world.

Although no police re-port was filed, with local authorities, Sgt. Robert Gatewood of the Newport Beach police department this week confirmed the incident.

Gatewood said the agents cautioned police to keep an eye out for the weapon, which apparently has not been recovered.

Jean Chassanade,

general manager of the restaurant, said he was not aware of the incident, but noted the President's son dines there frequently.

Hays's ouster sparks big reform push

By RICHARD LYONS

WASHINGTON - The forced resignation of Rep. Wayne L. Hays, D-Ohio, Friday as chairman of the House Administration Committee; whetted demands by members of both parties for sweeping reforms in the House to restore public confidence in its operations

Democratic leaders met several times throughout the day to consider the form and content of proposals they will make next week to change the housekeeping operations of the chamber to avoid more scandal.

Speaker Carl Albert of Speaker Carl Albert of Oklahoma announced Hays's resignation, a move demanded by the Democratic leadership after the initial revelations that Hays had appointed his mistress to the committee's staff.

"The Hays resignation is not the end of it," said Rep. Thomas P. O'Neill of Massachusetts, the majority leader. "We will announce reform proposals next week and have remedial legislation out by

Rep. Frank Thompson, the New Jersey Democrat who will replace Hays as committee chairman next week, said he had a "whole headful of ideas," including a drastic over-hauling of the accounting systems to prevent payroll padding and other abuses.

One of Hays's main sources of power had been the right of his committee to determine the sizes of many of the expense allowances to which representatives are entitled. The reform mood brought dozens of reform proposals, including audits of all the House records of the 94th Congress, the hiring of private manage-ment consultants to examine congressional operations, and the creation of an employee rights committee for the House as a vehicle to air grievances against members.

"I don't have any idea that Mr. Hays has been guilty of any wrongdoing through his service on international operations, but we ought to be strongly warned by his actions on other committees and ought to remove him now before we do it under a hail of bullets," Harrington said. Hays's fourth chairmanship, that of the Congressional Joint Committee on Printing, is due to expire at the end of this year. Hays also is under investigation of payroll padding charges by both the Justice Department and the House Ethics Committee. The latter's chairman, Rep. John J. Flynt, D.Ga., sald the panel is continuing its inquiries into Hays's actions as chairman of the admin-istration committee. Flynt is investigating charges made by Elizabeth Ray that she had been hired by Hays to serve as a clerk on the committee at a salary of $14,000, but acted primarily as his mistress. Hays has denied that Miss Ray served no useful purpose on the committee staff.

If Miss Ray's charges are substantiated they are substantiated iney would seem to indicate a violation of the False Claims Act. In addition to these investigations, a.W. 'More lap dogs than watch dogs' Press shuns sex scandals

By MARC ROSENWASSER

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - The Washington press corp has shied away from reporting about sex scandals in the past because "it's svanous in the past because "R's always been against the rules to write about that," syndicated columnist Jack Anderson said Friday.
"We're supposed to be the watchdogs of gavernment but watchdogs of government, but more often we've been the lap dogs," he told other reporters during a press conference at the inau-gural meeting of the Investigative Reporters and Editors (IRE).

Socializing among members of the media and politicians has hin-dered the investigative work done in Washington, Anderson added. "They (editors and publishers)

a they tentors and publishers) become pariahs when they show up at the country club when the head-line on the front page assails the other three in the foursome. It's mislayerd!"

The current scandal in Washington was touched off after disclo-sure of a sexual relationship between Rep. Wayne Hays, a powerful Ohio Democrat, and Elizabeth Ray, a staff worker on one of his committees. Hays is the subject of investigation by federal and House authorities to see if Miss Ray was paid to do secretarial work or only to be his mistress.

Miss Ray came to Anderson two years ago with some charges concerning sex on Capitol Hill. Anderson has said he and an associate checked out her story but were unable to corroborate it and therefore did not publish her allegations.

The veteran Washington correspondent said there is a growing backlash among the public over the wave of investigative stories done the past few years.

"There's latent hostility to the press, a feeling that these terrible things wouldn't be happening if we weren't writing about them," Anderson explained. "There's a feeling among the public that the press has gone too far."

Anderson was here to address the gathering of some 220 investigative reporters and editors. Also scheduled to address the three-day conference are New York Times investigative reporter Seymour Hersh and Des Moines Register and Tribune bureau chief Clark

Organizers of the conference said creation of a special research center will aid reporters around the nation in their investigative work.
"In offect the center will be an-alternative morgue (library,) a specialized source of information with which to organize, research and report stories," said Harley Bierce, one of the organizers and a report-on the organizers and a reporter for the Indianapolis Star.

The center would be at the journalism department at Ohio State University.

Teamsters local put in trusteeship

DETROIT (AP) - The executive board of the Teamsters' troubled Local 299 has voted to place the 18,000-member local in trusteeship, local President Dave Johnson said Friday.

Johnson, an ally of missing ex-union boss James R. Hoffa, said the board voted under "strong pressure from (Teamsters President Frank) Fitzsim-mons" to place the local largest in Michigan, in

The vote took place in

Judge Tim Murphy of District of Columbia Superior Court issued the order and scheduled a hearing for a preliminary injunction for June 28.

In her affidavit, Miss Ray said that when she signed the release, she "was working in the office of Congressman (Kenneth) Gray, was under extreme pressure and had no legal skills or even office skills that would have made her familiar with the contents of the document which sho

Johnson said the vote in favor of trusteeship was 5-0, with former Hoffa back-ers Steve Riddle and Robert Lins voting with the Fitzsimmons forces.

Johnson vowed to go to court to challenge the trusteeship. It was not known when the action naming Dalton takes ef-

Trusteeship gives national officers of the Teamsters control of the local's affairs and assets for up to 18 months.

Local 299, torn by dis-sension that has often involved beatings and bomb-ings, is considered to be strongly pro-Hoffa and anti-Fitzsimmons. Before Hoffa disappeared last July 30, he told associates he planned to launch a bid to unseat Fitzimmons by becoming president of Local 299. Johnson said he would step aside to give his post to Hoffa.

Not attending the con-vention were Johnson and another member of Local 299's executive board. Otto Wendel, who also supported Hoffa. Johnson said he stayed away from the convention because he wanted to stay away from Fitzsimmons.

"I don't see any reason for a trusteeship," said Johnson, "They want Dick Fitzsimmons (as Local 299 president) and they'll do anything to get him in there."

Bitter campaign ends as Italy awaits ballot Religious parleys Religious People and ideas Benedict Arnold

By HILMI TOROS

ROME (AP) - Italian parties ended a bitter and vielent campaign for parliamentary elections Friday night with the two largest parties — Christian: Democrats and Communists — hurling accusations at each other in Rome rallies.

The elections Sunday and Monday are ludged Monday are judged tantamount to a referen-dum on Italian-style communism, although nine national parties are vying for 630 chamber and 315 senate seats. Campaigning ended at mid-night Friday with a day-long pause Saturday be-fore the balloting by about 40 million Italians.

COMMUNIST leader Enrico Berlinguer called the Christian Democrats a 'Barnum circus'' divided by factions and tainted with corruption. About 40,000 persons roared their approval and gave clenched-fist salutes when Berlinguer demanded the resignation of Foreign Minister Mariano Rumor, accusing him of involvement in the Lockheed payoff scandal, one of the issues of the 45-day election campaign. Eless than two miles away, Budget Minister Giulio Andreotti, a Chris-tian Democrat, warned that Communists "are not a new party," but a party that has brought horrors and lack of freedom in the countries they rule. About 10,000 persons attended less than a rally held the previous night by the small but vocal neo-Fascist Party.

Violence continued to the final day of the campaign which was marred by four deaths. In industrial Milan, lettist gangs tossed firehombs at the offices of the rightwing Italian Social Movement (MSI) Party. In the southern town of Barletta, three leftists and a policeman were hospitalized after street fighting near an MSI branch.

THE VATICAN weekly, Osservatore Della Domenica, urged Italians to "remain united" and vote for the church-backed Christian Democrat Party, "the only true obstacle" to communism in Italy.

Although rampant infla-tion — 35 per cent on an annual basis in January through April — the decline of the currency, and an unemployment rate of 7 per cent of the 20 million strong labor force all figured as election issues, they were overshadowed by "the Communist question.'

At the Communist rally,

The Christian Democrat rally was marred by the absence of party secretary Benigno Zaccagnini, recuperating from prostate surgery.
Andreotti, who has served nearly continuously in one capacity or another in governments formed by the Christian Democrats in the past 29 years, chal-lenged the Communist party's pledge of respect for democracy. In front of a massive banner proclaiming the Christian Democrat campaign slogan 'The new DC (Christian Democrats) has aiready begun," Andreotti said the Communists would have the voters believe "the new communism has aiready begun,"

Police intervened to disperse the number of the property of the place of the property of the purpose of perse the youths. Rumor once again denied any wrongdoing in the Lockheed affair.

The Italian Communist Party — PCI — took 33 per cent of the votes in a nationwide local polling last June and embarked on a major drive to overlake the Christian Democrats, the dominant party whose strength has slipped from 48 per cent in 1948 to 35 per cent last year.

The Communist Party, guided by the soft-spoken Berlinguer, waged an allout campaign against the Christian Democrats, who led Italy from the ruins of World War II through the economic "II Boom" of 1950s and 1960s and back to its current eco-nomic bust.

THE PCI, vowing to govern through the parlia-ment and respect individu-al freedoms, declared itself autonomous from the Kremlin, gave its preference to NATO over the Warsaw Pact and pressed its claim for a share in ruling Italy — a role op-posed by the United States.

Young Benedict started life as a druggist. He was good in his profession, but he wasn't willing to spend his life in a stuffy New England store. So he left his sister Hannah to tend the shap while he bought ships and took up smugging in the Caribbean. (Smuggling in colonial New England was almost a respectable crime.)

The store grew and grew, becoming a kind of early-day Sav-On with books, dry goods, spices, rum and other merchan-

When war was approaching he became com-manding officer of the local unit of Connecticut militia. He was a spit-andpolish soldier, demanding beautiful uniforms, strict discipline, constant drill and sobriety. The soldiers were mostly young gentry.

When war came, they were sent on an ill-planned campaign through the unexplored wilderness of Maine to attack the British in Canada. They joined forces with Ethan Allen's Green Mountain Boys, a band of hard-drinking, hell-roaring, Bible-quoting hillbillies. Their worst cuemies were the wilderness, winter and disease. It was one of the roughest little campaigns in American history. They didn't win, but they took Fort Ticonderoga and made the British respect them.

Arnold, now a general, fought herolcally in many battles. He especially dis-tinguished himself at Saratoga. He took a couple of bad wounds, so his friend Washington reliev-ed him of field duty by making him commandant of Philadelphia. Arnold, a handsome widower and a bonafide hero, lived high in high society and married one of the belles.

He got himself assigned to West Point, then a key fortress. There he started dickering with the British to give them the stronghold - for a price. His young wife was also involved.

The plot was discovered, and Arnold fled to the British. The gratitude of princes is a chancey thing, but the British paid his price, guaranteed pensions for himself and family, and made him a colonel. He conducted three important raids, one of which was marred by the massacre of Americans who had surrendered. Although Arnold, it seems, had no

He tried business in New Brunswick, but Tories who had fled from the United States burned him in effig; and labeled him traitor.

Why did the man act this way? It is suggested that it was because of his inordinate love of money. He knew how to get the stuff but he was always on the edge of bankruptcy be-cause of his vainglorious tastes.

Perhaps. But doesn't it run deeper than that? Here was a man who didn't believe in anything except the main chance. At an early age he disavowed all religion. It is not recorded, as far as I have read, that he had the kind of fervor for the Revolution expressed by the men who pledged "their lives, their fortunes and their Sacred Honor" in the Declaration of Independence. He was a man of heroic courage on the battlefield — but perhaps he was fighting only for himself and a handful of medals. fighting

Father Serra led a little band of Spanish monks and soldiers north from San Diego toward a great dream. He envisioned a Christian commonwealth of Indians on the shores of the Pacific. He built the missions. He continued his march of faith even after he became lame. His great dream, like all human dreams, failed in part. The Spaniard didn't understand fully the nature and needs of his new-caught converts. And the times were changing. The new Republic of Mexi-co was no friend of the missions. Some of the churches, however, are still very functional.

Every California Catholic, even 11 he comes here from Ireland or Italy or Missouri, is a spiritual heir of the old monk. In fact, in a sense, every Californian is.

Stand along El Camino Real some moonlit night and, between the cars, you may see the dim tigure of a limping priest and hear a voice calling the savages of California to Salvation.

There are those who believe the monk's call is more important today then it was 200 years ago.

CATEGORICAL IMPERATIVES

So live that if your conduct became the universal custom the world would benefit."

That is a paraphrase of the categorical imperative of Immanuel Kant, a Prussian philosopher of the last century. It sounds good, but is it true? Should a modern American or a sinese aristocrat pattern his life after a stuffy German intellectual?

And yet, in a way it has to be true. If one forgets the nuances of culture, there should be ways to express our common humanity, to so act that we can relate to bushmen and nobles.

The world is full of categorical imperatives. Some of them, including some in the Bible, seem to clash with each other. Usually, however, if one thinks about them and the people who believed, the clash is more cultural than true.

Some categorical imperatives are professional:

The Army says:
"Honor, Duty, Country."
The Marines say: "Semper Fidelis" — "Always Faithful."

Doctors say, "Heal the Judges should say:

"Love mercy and justice and walk humbly . . ." A good one for newspapermen would be the categorical imperative of the ancient, warlike Medes: "Speak the truth and shoot straight with the bow and arrow. There are many other categorical imperatives.

They all raise the question of "How?" It is one thing to accept a principle and another thing to apply it. Perhaps the most troublesome categorical imperative of all is the Summary of the Law:"Thou shalt love the Lord thy God . . . and thy neigh-bor as thyself."

In one liturgy the re-sponse is: "Lord have mercy, Christ have mercy," Lord have." Anyone who believes in-this imperative is standing in the need of mercy. Who knows how to love God or, his neighbor or, perhaps especially, himself? And yet, this unworkable categorical imperative has through the mille-nia and in spite of all the shames and failures brought joy and meaning Christians and Jews.

AS A spiritual counselor, she applies parallel premises both of psychology and Christ's loying ac-

"The whole basis of healing is acceptance of oneself, she said in an interview. "When you do that, you can accept other people and become aware of acceptance of God. It's the basis of Christianlty being forgiven, accepted, freed of self-condemna-

A trim, blue-eyed blonde woman of 46, Mrs. Stapleton of Fayetteville, N.C., calls her approach "inner healing". It's a low-key, introspective process, consisting both of probing childhood experi-ences and prayer focused on Christ's limitless love for each person.

I WORK with the inner emotions of people to root out causes of emotional disorders, alcoholism, drug addiction, crippling anxieties," she said. "Most psychologists talk only to the intellect. I try to reach the subconscious the spirit — the spirit.

"As a hyproduct of emo-tional healing, many also come to experience deeper dimensions of spiritual growth. Often they may experience physical heal-ing when the psychoso-matic causes are re-moved."

She details case histories in a book, "The Gift of Inner Healing," published by Word Books of Waco, Texas. In sessions across the country and abroad, she has offered her guidance to individuals, groups and large audiences.

Baptist like her brother, her ecumenical approach cuts across denominational lines; Protestant, Roman Catholic and Jewish. Overseas, she has worked with Moslems, Hindus and at: a Communistrum university.

"I've broken away from "I've broken away, from the dogmatic, confining and sectarian view of Christianity," she said. "Christianity is to bridge the gaps with every faith, to cross every barrier of race, denomination and God is the God of every man. That's what Christianity means to me. Christ came to judge no man, but to give absolute love, the force that heals, breaks down barriers and restores wholeness."

But in many ways at present, she said, Chris-tlan organizational life is "sick," falling short of its "sick," falling short of its real meaning, giving the impression of being "exclusivist, divisive, judgmental, a legalistic set of moral laws," representing God only as a "God of judgment," condemning "our fellow man and ourselves," split into separate groups as if "every demonination is a little god."

"IT'S A FALSE image, but it's what we have done to Christlanity, what to Christlanity, what Christianity has done to it-self," she said. "What we need to do is get back to the basic person of Jesus who is open to every man."

Changes appear in the making, she added. "In this time and age the meaning of Christianity seems to be coming clearer. Groups are being reconciled, barriers between denominations broken days and profus broken down and preju-dice begins to be diminished on every level."

What she seeks to do, she said, is to help people "see God as a God of love. He is on their side. He wants to heal more than they want to be healed. I try to bring them to the place to receive that."

ALTHOUGH spending most of her time temporarily campaigning for her brother, she still keeps up her ministry on a curtailed schedule.

With extensive postgraduate training in psychology, she has de-veloped what she terms a "memory healing" procememory heading persons back through painful childhood episodes, even to conception and birth events through "faith imagination," adding to the experiences an assuaging element of love as manifested by Christ.

"If they're willing to carry through the process, something always happens," she said. "All at once, wham, and a person is relieved. A change takes place. It's a great experience when they break through their bond-

MAY I HAVE A MOMENT OF YOUR TIME?

Our experiment in preachingteaching last Lord's day evening seems to have been successful.

Numbers of people who had never studied prophecy expressed their interest in continuing sermon-lessons The teacher of a large Bible Class in the Pacific Northwest, visiting in our city, attending because of last week's advertisement, asked that all future lessons be sent to him; this we will be glad to do, of course.

This Sunday evening, our study will be "The Miroculous, Smiting Stope", heralding an event equalled only by the birth of our Lord Jesus Christ, interesting, and so significant every person should know concerning it.

If you have no church home, worship with us this next Lord's Day. You will find us a bit old fashioned, friendly, loving good gospel music, studying the Bible, and you may like what you find. Sincerely, Frank M. Kepner, Pastor

From time to time it is good to do some thinking about happiness and what makes for it. With our Bicentennial at hand this would seem a fitting time.
The Declaration of Independence proclaims the basic human right: win June 1776 the Contiaental Congress, com-posed of delegates from 18 American Colonies, de-reided to renounce allegiance to the British Crown and sever all politi-cal ties with Great Britain. They appointed a committee of five to draft a sultable proclamation. Among the live: Benjamin Yanklin, age 70 and by far the most famous member of the Congress; and two future presidents of the United States: John Adams of Massachusetts, age 41, and Thomas Jefterson of Virginia, age 33

The committee asked Jefferson to do the actual writing. After consultation, principally with Pranklin and Adams, he wrote a remarkable document. It was submitted to the Congress and after an all-day debate, with Adams vigorously defending its merits, was by unanimous vote accepted on July 4, 1776 with only minor changes and a few deletions. Thus Jefferson's inspired draft became the official Declaration of Independence.

It says: "We hold these thaths to be self-evident: that all men are created equal; that they are enwith certain unalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness." Nolige the basic right is not happiness, but the pursuit of happiness. The philosothers of our American Revolution wisely avoided he guarantee of happi-Inasmuch as it de pends largely upon a per-sph's mental attitude no government could confer it. But they did guarantee the right to pursue happi-ness. Believe me, that is quite a right.

The Founding Fathers had their views on what is conductive to happiness, and some of Jefferson's ideas on this subject are stated in his inaugural address of 1801. One of the certain "blessings" which be accounted for Americans being a happy and prosperous people was 'religion ... practiced in various forms, yet all of them including honesty, trulh, temperance, grati-tude, and the love of man. Another was the fact that we were a people fact nowledging and ador-ing an overruling Provi-dence ... that delights in the happiness of man here and his greater happiness hereafter." "Most Americans are aware that those who practice honesty, temperlove are lots happier in the long run than those who don't. But are we equally aware of a sense of a Providence at work in human life? This belief was widespread in the early years of this nation's history. It shows in the public reaction to what occurred on the Fourth of July in 1826. John Adams and Thomas Jefferson, 91 and 83 years of age, died within a few hours of each other. The impact of their deaths is described in a biography by Page Smith:

"It was almost a week before word spread through the country that the two last great figures of the American Revolution had both died on the Fourth of July, 50 years to the day after the resolu-tion of independence. It could not be said that Americans were smick dumb, rather the opposite. They were struck into an outpouring of wonder and astonishment. A great cry of amazement and awe rose from the nation. For those Americans of a religious persuasion it seemed a peculiar instance of the intervention of that divine Providence which had guided the United States from its inception. Even hardened skeptics were shaken in their disbelief."

We of the present generation could surely do with more of this sense of Divine Providence. A belief in high destiny challenging us both individually and as a nation could lead us on the road to greater happi-

If our people would let their minds dwell a little more on the deeper mysteries of life, Divine Guid-ance which was so great a part of the early days of our country would develop once again. To survive as a nation and discharge our leadership in the complex modern world can best be done through dependence upon the Guldance of God did our forefathers in their time.

Priest cool to Spain

WASHINGTON, D.C. (AP) — The social justice expert of the U.S. Catholic Conference has asked the U.S. Senate to postpone ratification of a proposed treaty of friendship with Spain, once linked in an accord with the Vatican, until prospects for "inter-nal reforms" are clearer.

The Rev. Bryan J. Hehir, in a letter to all senators, cited repressive excesses under Spain's late Generalissimo Francisco Franco. He said the new government of King Juan Carlos has "moved slowly to institute re-forms," but Franco supporters in the government have opposed them. Post-poining ratification of the treaty, he said, would serve "the future of human liberty in Spain."

l have long enjoyed your coverage of the reli-gious scene, and have appreclated the fact that you seem to be fair in your approach to controversial topics, but in your June 5 issue I just could not help taking exception to your article entitled "Pharisees don't deserve bad name".

You must be kidding. I would suggest you go to chapter 23 in the Gospel according to Matthew and read it. After all the New Testament is the only source of information we ave concerning Jesus and His relationship with His contempories. The Pharisees were the ones respon-sible for His trial and death on the cross.

Note from Mait: 23, verses 13 ind 14 "but woe

unto you Scribes, and Parlsces, for ye shut up the Kingdom Of Heaven against men; for ye nelther go in yourselves, neither allow them that are entering to go in. We ento you, Scribes, and Pharisees HYPOCRITES, for ye de your widows houses, and for a pretense make long prayers: therefore, ye shall receive the great-er damnation. Verse 15 Woe unto you Scribes, Pharisees hypocrites, for ye compass sea and land inake one proselyte, made ye make him twofold more the child of HELL than yourselves." Verse 33 "Ye serpents, ye generation of vipers, low can you es-cape the damnation of hell?"

There are many other dreadful condemnations beaped, by Christ on the heads of these, His enemies. They tried to kill Paul the Apostie, until he finally turned completely away from them to the Gentiles, incidently, the Jewish leadership STILL rejects Christ, Now, Mr. Clutter, does this sound to you like a "Lover's Quarrel" (Quote from Bishop Sheen? I can appreciate the efforts of the world of religion to water down New Testament truth and make it paintable to humanistic religion, but let's try to be reasonably fair to the written Word of God.

Thank you for taking the time to read this. Best wishes to you in your work. I often use your work. I often use your comments in our Wednesday evening meetings.

Witness In view of recent letters about Jehovah's Christian Witnesses in the past few weeks we are prompted to ask "What do most people think a Christian is?" It would seem that the qualifications for being a Chris-tian are few and easily filled according to the letters we have read. As one standard to answer this question we can go to Webster's Second Collegi-ate Dictionary which says under the heading Christian: A person professing belief in Jesus as the Christ; professing the religion based on these teachings and having the qual-ities demonstrated and taught by Christ such as love, kindness, humility, etc. As another standard (and a superior one) we will go to the Bible: The Bible says a Christian is:

(1) one who follows the foot steps of Christ - 1

(2) one who recognizes that salvation is through Christ - Acts 5:30 & 31 1 (3) not involved in word-

ly affairs -- John 15:19 --James 4:4- 1 John 2:15 (4) they obey worldly rulers unless they conflict

with God's laws -

(6) they must put away the works of the flesh and put on the fruits of the spirit — Gal. 5:19-23 — Rom. 12:2 - Eph. 4:17 &

(7) like Jesus they must witness for God — John 17:6 & 26 — Rev. 1:5— Rom. 15:5 & 6

(8) they must witness for Jesus also — Acts 1:8 — Acts 5:22 — Acts 10:40-42 (9) Christians are to be reachers — Matt. 28:19 & 0 — Matt. 24:14 Rom. 10:9 & 10 - Acts 5:42 - 1 Cor. 9, 16

(10), they must expect to suffer persecution — John 15:20 — Luke 6:22 & 23 — 1 Pet. 5:9 - John (11) true Christians have unity throughout the world -1 Cor. 1:10 John 17:20 &

(12) true Christlans would not steal - Eph.

(13) they would not lie --John 8:44

(14) they would have the highest of moral standards Rom. 1:2428 — Col. 3:5; I

Cor. 6:9-10 (15) they would not be hypocritical — James 3:17

regularly and makes large donations on Sunday but then on Monday steals from his employer, really a Christian? Are the par-ents who are involved in their religious activities to the extent that their chil-dren do not get the proper guidance and companionship of their parents really Ghristian? Or how about the people who tell little feeling it is perfectly alright if it suits their pur-pose in view of Jesus' words at Luke 18:10. And then there are those who call themselves "Chris-tian", like the doctor that inflates his bill to Medicare and the like, or the politican that supports illicit sexual relations with the taxpayer's money, or the "good" mother who drinks to the point of intoxication while the children are in school, or the policeman who sells dope on the side. And we could go on, and on, and on. And all these "profess to be Christian." We find all these practices tightly interwoven into our "Christian" society. How does this harmonize with what the Bible says about a Christian?

It is interesting to note that of all the groups who profess to be Christian, only one who as a world wide organization, practice the requirements of Christianty as set forth in the Bible. This group is the only one free from the corrupt practices mentioned. This group is also the object of much hostility as Jesus said they would be — Matt. 10:22 — John 15:20. Who are they? Jehovan's Christian Witnesses. Anyone who says we do not believe and accept Jesus as Lord and savior can read any of our litera-ture or attend any of our meetings. If we are to be hated, then let us be hated for what is true about us and not by the false accusations so widely voiced:

Anti-Mormon

As a concerned born again Christian, I became very disturbed over the article by Eva G. Miner on the Mormon church, I appreciate your religion

section in that it does print stories on other faiths, but I don't think it is fair to your readers who might not know what the Mormons stand for. In no way can the Normons claim to be Christians, as the story made it appear. The Mor-mons do not "preach a strict, straight gospel based on old-fashioned Biblical principals."

The Mormons teach that God is an exalted man, and was once like we are now. If they believe that, then pres. Kimball's statement that "God is the same yesterday, today and forever" is false. They deny the principal doctrine of traditional Christianity that salvation is provided by grace alone through the work of Jesus Christ. I admire the Mormons and the success they have had, but I feel it is unfair to non-Mormons and especially Christians classify them as Chris tian. Every person who considers joining the Mormon church should read i John 4:1-3 and Galatians Russ Schwartz

Long Beach

Concerts

The Lord has provided the opportunity for an interdenominational outreach to Long Beach and the surrounding area by means of Christian Music Concerts. The concerts will be held on a monthly basis, and will feature Maranatha Music groups. They will begin at 7:30 p.m., the last Friday of each month, with the initial one commencing on June 25th. The place of the concerts will be the Ebell Auditorium here in Long Beach. The Ebell is located on 3rd Street at Cerri tos Ave., just one block west of Orange Ave.

A small committee has been formed to handle the production of the concerts. This committee, given the title "SALT" is not affiliated with a specific congregation, but desires rather to serve the entire body of Christ. We hope that members of your congregation will be able to use this outreach both to edify and to draw others to our Lord Jesus Christ. We hope also that you will pray for the outreach as you remember it.

If there are questions concerning any aspect of this ministry, please feel

'Africa's Christian Institute, and John Rees, secretary general of the South African Council of Churches, Both groups are strong opponents of South Africa's apartheid policy apartheid policy of strict racial separation.

THE racial upheaval spread to at least seven black townships in the Johannesburg region and erupted elsewhere in the country Friday. Police fought with automatic weapons and tear gas as angry blacks continued to riot, loot and burn.

The rioting broke out Wednesday in the black township of Soweto after police tried to break up a protest by high school students over required courses in Afrikaans, the language of the white rul-ing Boer faction. Adults quickly joined in and it became a revolt against the government and apar-theid.

Some blacks see Afri-kaans as a symbol of white oppression. Black students want to be taught in English, which they see as more practical and widespread.

AT THE United Nations in New York, Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim called for "maximum res-raint to end the bloodshed and suffering," and black nations called for a U.N. meeting on the issue. Waldheim said in a statement he was convinced "only urgent steps to end apartheid and racial discrimination can alleviate the tensions and unrest in South Africa four-ton Viking as it approached the planet's southern hemisphere, were "spectacular."

"They give an impression of the grand scale of the landscape in a way we've never seen before," he said.

Many of the features, such as a volcanic mountain at least 15 miles high and a deep canyon more than 2,500 miles long, were first observed by the Mariner 9 spacecraft in 1971.

Final preparations were being made Friday to put the Viking into orbit around Mars. A 40-minute rocket firing this afternoon is planned to put the Viking in orbit. Subsequently, the orbit will be trimmed to a smaller circle. As it circles for about 10 days, the spacecraft will survey its landing site at the mouth of the huge rift valley. The site is in an area called Chryse.

If the landing site appeared to contain no major hazards the lander will separate from the mother ship met for about 45 minutes Friday night to review final plans for the evacuation.

Afterward, White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen fold reporters, "I'm not going to be able to tell you the details of the evacuation — for obvious reasons." He said the President would "keep in touch with the situa-

Nessen said Gen. George S. Brown, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and Deputy Defense Secretary William P. Clements Jr. would stand by during the night at the Pentagon and national security assistant Brent Scowfrost and White House staff chief Richard B. Cheney would remain at the White House.

The spokesman reiterated that there was no plan to use American military forces in the evacuation but said elements of the U.S. 6th Flect would remain off the Lebanese coast "to assist if necessary." Nessen said about 200 of the 1,400 Americans in the war-torn country have signed up for the voluntary evacuation, but he indicated that more were expected to

U.S. diplomacy in the Middle East has left the Palestine issue as one of the last to be faced in arranging a gradual settlement between Israel and the Arab states. One reason is Israel's refusal, backed by succeeding U.S. administrations, to negotiate with the PLO until it accepts the presence of Israel.

Guarantees of the Americans' safety were given to unspecified Arab governments by the PLO, which is one of the principal elements in the Lebanese civil war, sources said.

Syria's military intervention is believed to have one of its objectives bringing Yasser Arafat's PLO organization under control.

On Thursday the PLO announced it had apprehended three suspects in the slaying Wednesday of U.S. Ambassador Francis E. Meloy Jr., economic counselor Robert O. Waring and their embassy driver.

Meloy was on his way to see Lebanese President-elect Elias Sarkis about the evacuation when he was ambushed in Beirut. According to U.S. officials, his last cable home dealt with prospects for withdrawing the

The promise of "safe conduct" evidently was one of the factors considered by Ford and the National Security Council in choosing a convoy of buses, and cars instead of a direct U.S. military rescue operation.

Meanwhile, other government sources said U.S. warships were moving closer to the Lebanese coast to be in position to help if road convoys of evacuating Americans meet serious trouble.

Pentagon officials refused to either confirm or deny the reported movements by the aircraft carrier America and an amphibious squadron headed by the helicopter carrier Guadalcanal.

A force of 1,800 Marines is aboard the amphibious

There were these other developments: -State Department spokesman Robert Funseth said the United States had received "assurances for the safe conduct" of the Americans on the weekend bus convoy organized by the British embassy.

—In Paris, a spokesman said the PLO was willing to "facilitate the evacuation of foreigners from Lebanon" as long as this did not lead to foreign intervention.

—The U.S. Embassy in Belrut strongly urged the Americans still in Beirut to join the convoy today.

The test convoy carrying 70 foreigners, including two carloads of Americans and the diplomats' coffins, reached Damascus Friday evening after coming under artillery crossfire in mountains east of Sidon.

One vehicle was hit by shrapnel when a shell landed between two of the vehicles escorted by Palestinian,

A special U.S. plane was in Damascus to fly to Washington with the diplomats' bodies today. Meloy's washington with the inflormats bodies today, likely's brother Daniel and special U.S. envoy Dean Brown were escorting the coffins. They planned to stop in Athens to pick up Waring's widow and one of his daughters.

BOWIE KUHN Unprecedented move

Kuhn to Finley: 'No sale'

Baseball commissioner Bowle Kuhn, often criti-cized for his moderate action, shattered baseball precedent Friday by unexpectedly cancelling Charles O. Finley's $3.5 million sale of three of his top players to the New York Yankees and the Boston Red Sox.

Finley, the maverick owner of the Oakland A's, immediately announced be was taking Kuhn to court, while Kuhn said the Yankees and Red Sox had each expressed a similar intention.

Kuhn, who reflected on this historic action for more than 24 hours before announcing it to a jammed news conference in New York City, said, "I am disallowing the assignment of the contracts in the best interest of baseball."

Kuhn whose tempre as commissioned as the contracts of the contracts in the best interest of baseball."

Kuhn, whose tenure as commissioner was threatened by a palace revolt last December—an unsuc-cessful insurrection led by Finley, said only he could uphold the integrity of the game and the maintenance of public respect for the sport.

"The commissioner is left with the lonely job of deciding integrity and confidence," Kuhn sald. "I have to weigh public opinion. I've been commissioner for eight years, and I have to use my own judgment. That's what I do. That's my job."

Finley said Kuhn "sounds like the village idiot. It's very stupid.

There have been many, many cash transactions

over the years and nothing has ever been questioned about those."

He later ordered his manager, Chuck Tanner, not to use Joe Rudi, Vida Blue or Rollie Fingers.
"I don't even want them in uniform," he said.

"We're going to court Monday morning for an injunction," Finley told his manager. "You should own the American League after you get through with this one," said Tanner.

Finley touched off tremors in the baseball world Tuesday night by selling Blue to the New York Yankees for $1.5 million and Fingers and Rudi to the Boston Red Sox for $1 million each.

But Kuhn turned those tremors into an earth-quake by voiding the sales and upsetting baseball precedent. He ordered that the Oakland Three would remain on the A's roster and could participate in Friday night's game against Milwaukee.

Walter O'Malley, the influential owner of the Dodgers, supported the commissioner's action and said it "highlights the absolute necessity for a reserve clause. It was a tough decision to make, and I must say I go along with him."

Never before had Kuhn invoked his "integrity of the game" powers with regard to a transaction.

While acknowledging that sales for players as significant as Hall of Famers Babe Ruth and Joe Cronin have not been nullified in the past, Kuhn said he was drawing the line here.

Kuhn said the difference was that never before

"Whether other players will be available to re-

Store the club by using the cash involved is altogether speculative, although Mr. Finley vigorously argues his ability to do so, Kuhn said.

Such standout performers like Fred Lynn, Carton Fisk and Rick Burleson of Boston and Bobby Grief of Baltimore can become free agents at the end of the season, but they will ask for high salaries. Finley said Thursday be was forced to sell Rudi, Fingers and Blue because he wouldn't meet their

, O'Connell felt his club was in the right in purchasing the players.

"We went by the baseball rule book," he said. "How he can go against it is incomprehensible. I don't understand how he did it."

Kuhn said that it was significant that the Yan-kees and Red Sox, two of the richest clubs and teams with the best attendance figures in the American League this season, were the purchasers of Finley's three players.

"I am concerned about the prospect of affluent clubs such as Boston and New York acquiring for sums as large as $3½ million players in the prime of their careers," said Kuhn.

🚅 🥞 cannot help but conclude," Kuhn said, "that I would be remiss in exercising my powers as commissioner pursuant to the Major League Agreement and Major League Rule 12 if I did not act now to

"That was a long time ago," he said of the ill-ness, "and it has no affect on how well or how poorly I do in the Trials."

But later, while embrac-ing Long Beach Swim Club assistant coach Klaus Barth, Shaw admitted, "I was dying out there, espe-cially the last 50 meters."

"H was a courageous race," said Shaw's coach, Dick Jochums. "He went all out. On the final 25 meters he was swimming on guts alone."

It was a popular effort.
After Shaw qualified first Friday morning, Naber and Bruce Furniss leaped into the pool to con-gratulate the Long Beach State freshman.

"It had nothing to do with the fact that Tim is the greatest amateur athlete in America," explained Furniss. "It is simply that he is a very, very close friend, and we want him on the team.

Receiving a handshake from former Jordan High water polo coach Dave Timpone, Shaw turned water polo play-by-play announcer:

"It's a desperation shot," Shaw said into an imaginary microphone, "and, it goes in."

Then, spotting his father, Tim smiled slightly and said, "Wheeeew!" Make that a collective "wheecw."

Benton outran two Zlac compatriots, Stitt and Stockton, by nearly eight seconds in the junior single and then Benton and Stockton bested a Mexican National team by nearly seven seconds in the junior double.

The Zlac intermediate eight beat a Minnesota crew by 3.6 seconds and the Zlac quad was 6.5 seconds faster than a Green-lake of Seattle entry.

The regatta, which concludes Sunday, continues today, beginning at 8 a.m. Today's featured finals include the open single (8:30), high school eight (9:30), open quad (10:30) and open pair (11:30).

Long Beach native Joan Lind, the winner of the U.S. Olympic Trials here a month ago, is entered in the open singles. The high school eight will feature a defending champion Zlac team being challenged by St. Paul's of Concord, New Hampshire, the eastern high school champions.

The open quad showcases the U.S. Olympic team of Claudia Schneider, Lisa Hansen, Liz Hills, Karen McCloskey and Irene Moreno. The open pair race is expected to be a duel between the LBRA entry of Hansen and Schneider and the Philadelphia team of Barbára Hills and Lisa Robdie.

Friday's rowing, which ran well into the afternoon, was hampered by strong cross winds which were estimated to be as high as 30 miles per hour.

The wind was responsi-ble for several mishaps which delayed starts and camaged four boats.

One open eight repechage had to be restarted after Washington and Mexico collided as the race, began. Officials blamed the mishap on the wind.
"The conditions were very trying," said starter Bob Switzer, "but I feel we had fair starts on all races. It was taxing on the rowers, however. It was very difficult for them to their boats correctly aligned at the start of the race."

Liftle Blue Sheep turned in the second fastest time in 16 years when she blistered the Los Alamitos straightaway to the tune of 17.52 seconds while blazing to victory in the $10,815 Go Josie Go Stakes

Friday night.
Sent off as the heavy 1-2 favorite, Little Blue Sheep won by 1½ lengths in the 350-yard event and increased her 1976 earnings to nearly $20,000.

Jockey Terry Lipham, who guided the mare to the $3, $2.60 and $2.10 triumph was pleased with umph, was pleased with the 4-year-old's perform-

Newland, swamped with paper work as about 600 athletes prepared to com-pete, said an athlete came to him earlier in the week wishing to run in the 100.

"I asked him how fast he had run and he said 9.7

or 9.8. I asked him was that for 100 yards or 100 meters, and he said meters," Newland said.

"I asked this guy how fast he was and he said, 'I can beat anybody you got.' The trials just don't work that way," Newland told

A series of qualifying marks were established early last year. Athletes who achieved those marks between May 31, 1975, and June 12, 1976, are qualified for the trials.

Other athletes can qualify on the basis of per-formances in various national championship meets, finishes in head-tohead competitions and on the basis of consistent performances which might not be under the qualifying standard. Other facilities for this first ever combined men's and women's trials also appear better than in the past and perhaps those reasons prompted one sprint hopeful who was not qualified to tell Newland:

"I'll meet your qualifying standard. Come down on the track tomorrow morning and I'll run one for you."

titles. Salvador Torres of Guadalajara, Mexico, hopes to be the sixth successive successful challenger when he meets World Boxing Association featherweight king Alexis Arguello of Nicaragua tonight.
One man who thinks he will be is Art Hafey, the little Canadian who will fight Danny (Little Red) Lopez at the Forum next month for the right to challenge the World Box-ing Council's feather titleholder, David Kotey of Ghana.

Hafey has lought both men, losing a five-round brawl to Arguello in Nicaragua in 1974 and winning a split decision from Torres at Annheim in 75.

"After watching both fighters train," Hafey says, "I lean toward Torres because he has really prepared himself. It seems to me that Alexis is taking Salvador too lightly and hasn't worked as hard as he should."

Not so, say others who have watched Arguello's workouts at the Main Street Gym. He seems to be doing a normal amount of ring work and con-cludes each session with a masochistic routine of calisthenics in the dressing room to bring his long,

"It is important," the bi-lingual idol of his countrymen states. "I am very careful with the Mexicans. They are all good fighters—strong, courageous."

It's natural that Arguello would have great respect for the Mexicans. Not only did he have to climb off the floor to beat one-Torres' brother Jose-in a non-title bout last February, but he was mistaken for one when he came north to take the title from Ruben Olivares in November of 74.

Immigration officials
caught Arguello out sightsceing without his visa one day and were ready to deport him when the matter was resolved. Now that he speaks English and is better known, he has had no problem.

"But I carry my pass-port all the time," he says, reaching for a small, black bag

So Arguello, a 2-1 favorite despite the Forum trend and Art Haley's astute opinion, is not likely to be taking any chances.

I say "unfortunately" because some of them would have done better WITH a sex scandal. Outside of the debate whether Ronald Reagan dyed his hair, what did we have? Nothing. But didn't Harold Stassen have something in his closet? Yes — some 1968 suits.

Jane Fonda wants to know why her pots aren't scorched. She should be upstairs in her dressing room get-ting ready for the next scene, but instead she's downstairs asking the film's producer why her pots aren't scorched.

'She wants the house to look more lived in," ex-plains the producer. "And she's right. It looks rent-ed, which it is."

The home of the un-scorched pots is a $150,000

model bilevel house, amid a tract of $150,000 homes, in the Benedict Canyon section of Los Angeles. The house is being rented by Columbia Pictures for its new domestic comedy
"Dick and Jane." George plays an aerospace executive who is suddenly laid off, and Fonda plays his harried wife

Today is the first day the film company is work-ing in the house, and Miss Fonda has spent part of the morning creatively finding fault. She wants drawings by her children in the movie to be hung on the refrigerator door. And so the young boy who plays her son in the pic-ture is quickly given crayon and paper. She wants avocado plants growing in the kitchen. Someone is dispatched to

"DICK and Jane" direc-tor Ted Kutchoff also noticed the Fonda eye for detail: "We were doing this scene where George and Jane are stealing money out of a record-store cash register. Both of them had gloves on so they wouldn't leave fingerorints. In the shot George s in the foreground, but I'll be damped if Jane didn't start licking her rubber-gloved fingers like a bank teller when she was counting the money. It's a small thing, but it could play funny on the screen. The point is she's: always investing banal moments with something

Inside her dressing room, while jumping into a costume of tight blue jeans and a fuzzy purple sweater, Fonda talked about her three-year ab-sence from films and the reasons she's making "Dick and Jane."

She's very direct. When I walked into the dressing room—just a converted bedroom in the house—she stood up, stuck out her hand for a handshake and said, "Hello; I don't want to talk to you now." She next took a phone call, and then we talked. She said:

"I HAVEN'T been completely out of films for three years. After 'Klute' (1971), I got a lot of scripts with parts for prostitutes. Instead I played Nora in 'A Doll's House' for television. I made documentaries (including 'Introduc-tion to the Enemy,' an hour-long film on North Vietnam)."

lapan's no-growth ex-port market of recent recession years "is coming to life in 1976" — and Long Beach could become Southern California's major port of entry for this expanding trade.
This was the gist of a two-part message deliver-ed by a non-Japanese officer'of a Japanese bank to business leaders attending a Long Beach Chamber of Commerce breakfast meeting this week.

And K.A. (Gus) Conto, a vice president of the Los Angeles-based Japan Cali-fornia Bank, left few doubts that he believes the formation here of a For-eign Trade Zone (FTZ) could be a major step forward in the city's continuing efforts to create more private enterprise jobs for its people while achieving higher levels of economic stability.

CONTO, 45, born of Greek immigrant parents in New York City, noted that Long Beach presently is readying an application to the federal government for a 10-acre FTZ in the proposed Westside Industrial Park.

"That is a progressive step in the right directioh," he said, pointing out that Los Angeles is not a trade zone. "With proper planning and support, you may find the 10-acres aren't enough. "You have available, not only your own air terminal, but Los Angeles International Airport, which is served by major air freight forwarders. Long Beach has its own port, of course, and the Port of Los Angeles is nearby. And L.A. is not a trade zone — which works to your benefit."

Numerous benefits ac-crue to business firms with Foreign Trade Zones available to them, he said. Among these is the right to land and store imports without making immediate customs payments.

Conto's Japanese-owned, California-chartered state bank possibly is unique in its independence of big Japanese banks. Formed two years ago and based in downtown Los Angeles, it is wholly owned by 32 major corporations, including Hitachi, Sony, Kawasaki, Toyota Sony, Kawasal and Mitsubishi.

DISCUSSING recent economic history and what it portends for 1976, Conto said "business activity in Japan has been stagnant since it was hard hit by the credit squeeze and oil shock of 1974."

Presently, however, "We are looking at Japa-nese foreign capital in-

Japanese, world trade increased about 15 per cent in 1975 to a total of nearly $67 billion as com-pared to $59 billion in 1974. Imports in 1975 increased only 12 per cent, to $60.1 billion, leaving Japan with a trade surplus of almost $7 billion in 1975.

mands have not made ized as anticipated," he said. Consequently, logically then, "the 1975 record of Japanese private capital investment was non-productive. Factory sales, a ba-rometer of the state of investments, declined in each quarter last year, he said.

"There are bright spots on the horizon," Conto averred, "and there are signs that 1976 will be the year of recovery and nor-malization. Of particular interest are signs that Japan's export trade is showing signs of recov-

He pointed out that "Japan is America's sec-ond largest trading partner (after Canada); and that California is Japan's largest trading partner and the largest single investor in the California

In the future, he pre-dicted, many Japanese banks increasingly will enter the U.S. venture capital market, acting as partners with selected industries. Japanese banks may be expected to lead the way, bringing with them wealthy new industries.

"We hope to aid in altracting foreign invest-ment and thus add to employment and the economic stability of our areas" in California, said Conto. "You will find other Japapese banks with similar inclinations"—although none presently are located in Long Beach.

FTZs ARE yet another opment. And in the city of Long Beach, "where the U.S. Navy's withdrawal drew heavily on your economic situation, there has been a void — which can be filled if you choose to become the major Southern California port of entry" for world trade.

"That decision is yours, and that of your citizens," concluded Conto.

Petrolane scholarships

David Pitt, left, and Deborah Vogel are congratulated by John C. Wallace, president of Petrolane, as the first winners of fouryear scholarships given by the Long Beach-based firm— 34th largest in the state. Pitt, a Millikan graduate, will study English and music at Long Beach State. Miss Vogel, of Corona del Mar, plans to be a doctor and will attend Radcliff. The awards were for Petrolane employes' children based on the top scores from National Merit Scholarship Program tests. Pitt's father is district surveyor for the Eastman-Whipstock subsidiary. Miss Vogel's mother is a Raleigh Hills Hospital nurse in Newport Beach—one of seven Petrolane alcoholic treatment facilities.

Industry Week

Go after that raise if you deserve it

CLEVELAND - Most managers say if you think you deserve a raise you should step forward and ask for it. But few of them are willing to do so themselves, Industry Week said

The subject of raises is highly delicate, the magazine for managers finds. The majority of managers contacted by the magazine say they have never asked for a raise. Others have, but aren't willing to relate their experiences for the record.

So if you are among those who never have asked for a raise, Industry Week helieves you're part of the "si-lent majority."

And managers cite several reasons why reluctance to ask for a

ONE INHIBITOR is that in many companies salary structures are rigidly defined and people are likely to be familiar with the guidelines, criteria, and review procedures through which raises are given.

Other factors, including frequent changes of jobs, responsibilities, or location tend to minimize the times when employees think about asking for a raise.

But perhaps most important, suggests Industry Week, is that when the subject is money there is always a certain nervousness. "You can see they're uneasy about it. They probably have stayed awake several nights thinking about it," says one manager.

THIS MANAGER is typical of many. When he realizes the topic of conversation is going to be money, he tries to put the person at ease. He understands that it's a struggle for anyone in the middle class to maintain some distance between his level of buying power and encroaching inflation, so he tries to "really listen."

One manager acknowledges that "each person has to get in there and Indeed, he admires the person who comes forward, convinced that he is worth more than he is being paid. And because he believes there is a tendency by management to hold the line on salaries, he recognizes that a person may well deserve more or deserve it sooner. But he does add that he won't respond to a request for a raise "auto-matically," explains Industry Week. The more valuable a person is, the more likely he is to compromise.

THAT MEANS when you're asking for a raise it helps to have a winning record and to be ready to detail your accomplishments. For when the subject is raises, to a man the managers interviewed say they dislike beating

Anderson backs fair rates

In testimony before the South Bay to Long Beach House Subcommittee on representative said, "last Merchant Marine, Con-gressman Glenn M. Anderson (D-Harbor City) has urged passage of a bill aimed at maintaining competition among house-hold goods forwarders seeking contracts with the year household goods for warders were responsible for the successful movement of over 348,000 shipments of household for members of military.

"For over 50 per cent of the companies, this represents 90 to 95 per cent of their business. Thus, we are speaking about 33 of the 64 companies, in this business, and these 33 are the smaller companies."

the world.

THE BILL, HR 8849,
"For example," the gives the Federal Maritime Commission jurisdiction over international shipments of household supprents of nouserona goods. Under Anderson's legislation, shipping rates must be filed with the FMC 30 days before use by a government agency.

Protests may be filed if interested parties feel the rates are unfair.

The requirements would not apply if qualified carriers interested in meeting competitive rates are not excluded from the traffic for more than 30

"We've been reminding our employes for 40 years that we're not selling cars or soft drinks—we're selling service," he said.

clear-cut relationship between passenger complaints and profit levels has been shown.

For one thing, they charge that the CAB complaint figures don't reflect the way most air travelers feel about airline service.

"Some parts of the nation are heavily over-represented among those complaints," Richard D. Eiland, Eastern's director of consumer affairs, said.

"THE WASHINGTON-New York-Boston Corridor seems to produce more complaints historically than any other part of the country, and that means that carriers which serve the Northast receive a disproportionate share of complaints," he said.

Jack Yohe, consumer advocate for the CAB,

which has been keeping track of passenger com-plaints since 1971, said travelers in the Washington-to-Boston area do complain more than those from other parts of the country; but he doesn't feel that that's unfair to airlines that serve the Northeast.

"Even among airlines that fly the same routes in the Northeast, numbers of complaints vary greatly," Yohe said. "And airline service areas overlap so much that I don't believe the geographical spread if complaints is unfair to any one carrier.'

"The profitability of any airline depends largely on many aspects of operation that have no direct effect on passengers—like numbers of aircraft in service, employe productivity, fare levels and the cost of labor and fuel," Mike Clark, public relations manager at National Airlines, said.

"We look at customer service as one of the keys to success," Clark said, "but we don't think any meaningful comparison can be made between complaint ratios and profits."

Customer service key to airlines' success?

By JANE SCHOLZ Knight News Service

Do the mistakes made by the thousands of "little cople" who work for a major airline— like the baggage handler who carelessly puts a Los Angelesbound passenger's luggage on a New York flight-have a measurable impact on the profits of their multi-million dollar employer?

Based on a comparison of airline profits and passenger complaints, a management consultant contends that they do; but some airline executives are skeptical of his findings.

COMPARING PROFITS for the nation's 10 major air carriers with complaints received by the federal Civil Aeronautics Board, Dennis L. Johnson, a Chicago management consultant, concluded that there's a link between efficient, courteous service and airline profits.

Trans World Airlines, Northwest, Pan Am and American— the four airlines that had the highest passenger-complaint ratios, ranging from 4.11 to 6.53 complaints per 100,000 passengers— had combined losses of $100 million in 1975, Johnson found, while the losses of $109 million in 1975, Johnson found, while the six carriers with the lowest complaint ratio—from 2.13 to 3.85 per 100,000 passengers—had combined losses of $1.7 million last year.

"It is especially significant that two of the three airlines registering the most complaints (TWA and Pan-Am) also registered the worst losses for all airlines in 1975—$86.3 million and $46.1 million, respectively," Johnson said.

cient service with a smile accounts for much of the variation in the airlines' financial and complaint

"THERE'S REALLY no price difference among

airlines these days—they all have the same planes, and many fly the same routes. Service is the only distinguishing characteristic that brings the passenger back or turns him off, "Johnson said. When he talks about service, Johnson said, he doesn't necessarily mean pampering passengers with champagne and in-flight movies. "The complaints received by the CAB generally deal with routine kinds of things like overbooking, lost baggage and performance of flight attendants,

Johnson cited Eastern Airlines, which put a new emphasis on passenger service in the past year, as proof of his theory.

"In 1973 Eastern had the second worst passenger complaint record of the major airlines (8.21 complaints per 100,000 passengers) and the second-worst loss record of all 10 major airlines; but, by 1975, with a revamped consumer-service attitude, complaints dropped to 3.58 per 100,000 passengers, while losses were reduced almost a third," Johnson caid

Not all Eastern employes agree that it's corporate emphasis on being nice to passengers that's improved customer relations, however.

"What's made the difference is that the relations between management and labor have loosened up in the last year or so," a long-time Eastern stewardess said. "As management started easing up on some of the rules, morale started improving; and I think that's what caused the improvement in customer

AT DELTA AIR LINES, a consistent industry profit leader, which regularly ranks low in passenger complaints, executives feel that there may be some validity to Johnson's findings.

"It think service and employe attitude have got to have something to do with it (profits)," Joseph Meyer, assistant vice-president for customer affairs, said.

million-share offering by the company was declared oversubscribed.

American S&L due Seal Beach branch

American Savings and Loan Association has dis-closed the approval of its application by the California Department of Savings and Loan to open a new branch office in Seal Beach.

Officials said an interim facility will be opened in "several weeks" at 1025 Pacific Coast Highway in the Seal Beach Shopping Center. A permanent of-fice building will be constructed later on a nearby property owned by American Savings at the northwest corner of Pacific Coast Highway and Bolsa Avenue.

The Seal Beach office will be the 77th in American's California statewide branch system. It's American's fifth office in Orange County.

Jim Hartz will have new role for Today — traveling cohost (KALL. 1500 KNA. 1570 KNA. 1500 KNA. 1570 KNA.

NEW YORK & In late August, Jim Hartz-will turn over the studio end of hosting NBC's
"Today" show to Tom

road as what NBC calls "traveling cohost" of the two-hour program.

In some circles, this is called a massive shakeup, as the show, suffering rat-ings sag and the much-publicized adios of Barbara Walters, tries to refurbish its appearance and get those ratings up and viewers back

For Hartz, cohost of 'Today' almost two years, it's one of the hazards of the job. But he says it's also the chance to do something he's wanted to do — knock around the United States doing for "Today" the kind of human interest stories the late Ernie Pyle did for newspapers in the 1930s.

HARTZ, 36, is no stranger to the road, hav-ing done a series of Bicentennial segements from various states for the show this year. In fact, he says his travels for those segments led to his new onthe-road-job.

"A lot of people liked them, sponsors liked them and they got higher ratings for the show than during the rest of the week. he said of his Bicentennial segments, all aired on Fridays.

"I guess it turned out that a lot of people liked that better than they liked me sitting behind a studio

"And it's also no secret that we're down a ratings point or two from the record highs we had a year ago ... With Barbara leaving, I guess there was concern they'd (NBC offcials) have more ratings problems.

"SO I guess they just seized this opportunity to make a structural overhaul in the show.

During consideration of During consideration of that overhaul, did Hartz seek the traveling cohost job or did NBC News chief Richard C. Wald say changes had to be made and would he like the job?

'Windfalls' ease county budget tax crunch

By NOEL SWANN From Our L.A. Bureau

Supervisors Friday wrapped up public hearings on the county's pro-posed $3.2 billion budget for 1976-77 and set Monday at 10:30 a.m. for the start of their own deliberations.

While the board Friday continued hearing complaints about pro-posed health cuts totaling about $38.5 million, there were several indications the financial crunch would not be as bad as expected when supervisors begin their trimming job Monday.

In a bidget adjustment filed with the board, Chief Administrative Officer Harry Hufford sald general fund requirements now will be $1.4 million lower than expected and should offer a slight cut in the projected toy rate increase of the projected tax rate increase of 41

Hufford also reported Thursday that a promise by the state to speed up payments to the county for various programs would free some $11.5 million in reserve money. reducing the projected tax rate by another 4.8 cents:

Hufford's preliminary budget had been based on the expectation the property values throughout the county would increase by 10 per cent next year. However, there were recent indications to show the overall reassessment would jump by at least 12 per cent and, should that be the case the projected tax that be the case, the projected tax rate increase could be lopped by about another seven cents.

Some unexpected state Short-

Doyle money for federal health pro-grams would free a further $6 mil-lion, according to officials. This would mean a tax rate reduction of about 2 cents.

Overall, the budget adjustments and improved revenue situation have the effect of freeing a total of about $25 million, officials

However, the supervisors Thursday practically committed $9 million in subsidies for lowered bus fares which had not been included in Hufford's preliminary budget.

The net effect would result in about $16.5 million remaining free to help restore proposed health service cuts amounting to more than $38.5 million.

Among speakers at Friday's hearing were persons protesting the proposed closure of El Cerrito Health Services Center in Long Beach and a plan to convert Long Beach General Hospital from an inpatient hospital to an outpatient

Speakers said if these plans went into effect, hundreds of poor patients would have no other place

go. Supervisor James Hayes said be had received hundreds of letters from the Long Beach area in the past few weeks and vowed he would fight to keep the two Long Beach facilities intact.

Other supervisors, too, after being barraged with pleas to re-store the proposed health cuts, have indicated restoration will be one of their top priorities in the budget-setting process.

Compton court cracks down on burglars, firearms

Citing statistics showing that one out of every three cars stopped by Compton police carries an illegal weapon and that 12 burglaries a day are committed in the city, the Compton Municipal Court has ordered mandatory jail terms for convicted firearms and burglary of-feeders.

The new policy was announced Friday by Presiding Judge Everett E. Ricks Jr.

As evidence of the number of as evidence of the number of illegal weapons found, he presented boxes containing about half the 375 firearms of all sizes confiscated by officers in the Compton Judicial District during the past year? The guns will be melted down by the Sheriff's Department.

"Our court has confiscated more guns than all other municipal, courts in the county of Los Angeles; except the Los Angeles Municipal Court," Ricks said.

Twenty-three weapons were taken during a single recent week-end, and three to ten persons a day are arraigned in the Compton court on gun-related charges, be said.

"If we can take these weapons off the street, our citizens may be able to feel safer," Ricks added.

"Many good citizens and busi-nesses are moving away because of this intolerable crime situation," he declared. The city is handlcapped in attracting new industry because of high crime, he added

He said burglaries, particularly residential burglaries, have also been increasing steadily in his district, which covers Compton, Carson, Paramount, Lynwood and son, Paramount, Lynwood and some unincorporated county area. "We view crime as the tip of an iceberg," Ricks said. "Below the surface lie poverty, racism and other social problems, but they are no excuse for hurglary and criminal use of firearms."

Ricks noted that juveniles are handled by a different court and would not face the tougher policy set by the Compton Municipal Court. "But we hope to influence all nearby jurisdictions," he said.

Members of the six-man Compton court stressed that each case will receive; individual attention and the court will consider special "extenuating circumstances.", Un-less such special circumstances can be shown, "persons convicted of these offenses will suffer some time in jail."

Asked what kind of circumstances are "extenuating," Ricks said one example might be a gun found in a stopped car but which was unloaded and belonged to a responsible citizen.

"We will consider the person's background. Jail terms aren't the answer to every case," he conceded.

Reginald Cobb, executive officer of the court, suggested that a person who can argue that he needs a weapon for protection, such as a graveyard-shift llquor-store clerk or a security guard who carries more weapons than he is legally entitled to, might not receive a jall term if a weapon is found during a traffic stop and not during the commission of a crime. mission of a crime.

State law requires that a security guard must unload his weapon and keep it in open view when he is not on duty.

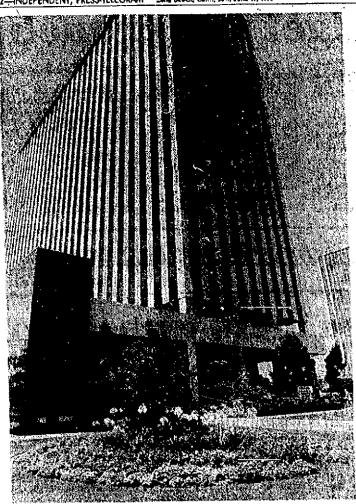

"We want people to know there's a new ball game down here," Cobb said. "They are going to know in advance that they will serve is it time if they are found." serve jail time if they are found guilty of carrying illegal firearms."

Ricks expressed satisfaction with the 12-story Justice Building under construction as part of new civic center near Acacia Street and Alondra Boulevard in Compton. The center includes a new library, city hall and police station.

With the help of the new building, and with our new policy on burglary and firearms possession, we will be in very improved posi-tion to combat crime," he said.

Wages going up fastest in West

WASHINGTON (AP) - Wages of workers in the western United States have risen faster in the past six months than elsewhere in the nation, a Labor Department report said Friday.

Workers in the West received pay increases totaling about 5.5 per cent during the six-month period ending in March. Workers in the Northeast, meanwhile, experiinced the lowest gains, 2.4 per cent.

In between were the South, up 3.9 per cent, and the North Central region, up 3.7 per cent. Nationwide, wage and salary rates increased 3.8 per cent during the

But it didn't make much difference whether the job was in a city or in a smaller community. Wages of workers in metropolitan areas rose 3.8 per cent, while those in nonmetropolitan areas increased 3.7 per cent. Blue-collar wages rose faster than white-collar pay. For example, managers and administrators gained 2.6 per cent, while laborers received increases of 4.5 per cent and service workers, 5.3 per cent.

WAGES AND salaries in manufacturing industries rose 4 per cent, and in transportation and public utili-lies, 4.6 per cent. Wholesale and retail trade compensa-

Information on wage and salary trends are contained in a new Labor Department report that will be released quarterly. The agency said the information on pay trends is the first component in preparing a new Employment Cost Index, which, when fully developed, will be "a comprehensive measure of changes in both wages and the cost of benefits."

THE NEW INDEX is intended to give the government and economists information that has been lacking on nationwide pay trends, similar to the kind of informa-tion now available on prices and employment.

The Labor Department said collection of informa-tion on workers' benefits, such as health insurance and retirement plans, will begin later in the year.

The agency gave a breakflown on nationwide pay trends for the past two quarters. Wages and salaries advanced 1.8 per cent in the three months ending in December, 1975, and 1.9 per cent in the quarter ending in March.

The index on pay trends did not include Alaska or Hawaii, although statistics from those states will be incorporated later. It also does not include wages and salaries in the farm sector of the economy, or in WASHINGTON -- The growth in the nation's total output of goods and services, the Gross Na-tional Product, is likely to slow substantially in the current quarter to an annual rate well under 5 per cent, government economists said Friday.

This assessment came as the Commerce Department revised slightly upward the annual rate of growth in the GNP for the first quarter, from 8.5 per cent to 8.7 per cent. Corporate profits in the first quarter were also revised ipward. Practically all economic forecasts have projected a moderation in GNP growth in the second quarter as compared with the torrid pace of the first. But now it appears that this slowdown will be much more marked than the "consensus" forecast has implied.

SO FAR, there appears to be no sense of alarmi or deep concern in the government about this prospect. But one official said Friday, "I can't help feel-ing just a little uneasy."

Only last week Alan treenspan, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, told the congres-sional Joint Economic Committee that the administration's forecast for the growth of the GNP for the year as a whole for the year as a whole was likely to be revised upward to around 7 per cent, compared with 6.2 per cent forecast in January. The new indications of much slower growth in the second quarter may cause another shift in the forecast for the full year, possibly back toward 6 per

The chief reason for the sharp reduction in the cur-rent quarter is the recent trend in consumer spending. After growing strong-ly and leading the economy out of the recession, consumer outlays — as measured by retail sales — flattened in April and declined a little in sitivity to inflation.

The doctors also say that contrary to, popular belief, most people do not need an elaborate and expensive medical checkup every year.

The Council on Wage and Price Stability reported recently that health care costs went up 10.3 per cent last year. Other service items in the Consumer Price Index went up 7.7 per cent.

The council also said the average American spent $547, or almost 10 per cent of his income, on health care in 1975.

Dr. James F. Fries, coauthor of "Take Care of Yourself: A Consumer's Guide to Medical Care," says that the average family of four now sees the doctor 12 times a year. The average cost of the visit is $35, for an annual expenditure of $420. And that's just for doctor's

Fries and his coauthor, Dr. Donald M. Vickery, estimate that two thirds to three-fourths of the visits - eight or nine trips turn out to be unneces-sary. Eliminate even half the unnecessary visits and you save almost $150.
One of the biggest problem areas in medicine

Fries and Vickery have provided a guide to help consumers decide whether they need the aid of a physician. It lists dozens of common symptoms and ailments and includes basic yes-or-no questions about each one.

Depending on the answers to the questions, the reader is advised to see a doctor immediately, make an appointment with a physician, or simply apply the home treatment described by Fries and Vickery. A separate section tells you what sort of tests, etc. to expect if you do go to the doctor.

The American Medical Association had no comment on the book, because no one in the group had issued an official review.

Here's how the guide

go on to the next question. Depending on your answers to subsequent questions about the persistence and severity of the headache, you may be directed to make an appointment with your doctor or apply home treatment such as aspirin.

The book is not designed to take the place of a doctor. It is designed, says Fries, to save time for both consumers and physi-cians and cut down family medical costs.
"An unproductive visit is a source of frustration checkup, both ways," he said, adding that, too often, physical ple healt clans wind up prescribing medicines that aren't really needed. "We've simply put in a usable form what everybody agrees on," Fries said. The advice "is the same as you'll get if you call any emergency

If you follow a few sim-ple health rules and regupie neath rules and regu-late your habits, "there are very lew advantages to be gained from the 'rou-tine checkup," according to Fries and Vickery.

FBI chief gets U.S. 'derelict', plea 'tick threat' in Angola defense

New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — The FBI disclosed Friday that Director Clarence M. Kelley has received a threatening letter containing dead ticks similar to ones sent to various business executives this week.

The ticks, said by the accompanying letters to carry dangerous disease, were found to be harmless in laboratory tests conducted by the FBI.

The Kelley ticks lent a bizarre new twist to what the bureau has described as a plot to extort millions of dollars by mail from about 200 American corporations and executives under threat of terrorism. Eighteen letter bombs have been received around the country this letter bombs have been received around the country this week. One has exploded, slightly injuring four employees Monday at a New York office of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc., the stock brokers.

IN ADDITION, A NUMBER of letters with similar markings and threats but containing ticks have arrived in Colorado, New York and Oklahoma. In Tulsa, Post-master Leon T. Atexander said three or four letters with

"They were just mashed," he told newsmen. "By the time they got through the canceling machine and equipment, they were dead."

Ticks, which are common in wooded areas of this country, are not insects but blood-sucking arachnids related to mites. They burrow under the skin of warmblooded animals, including humans, and fasten themselves with a barbed proboscis. Some species are known to transmit highly lethal diseases like Rocky Mountain resolted form.

Kelley's ticks, the source of much merriment at the usually somber FBI headquarters here, arrived with the Wednesday mail. They were addressed personally to the director in a letter postmarked Texarkana, Tex., the origin of many of the other threatening letters and bombs. An FBI spokesman was unable to say exactly how many ticks there were, or whether they had been mashed.

TUESDAY, KELLEY HELD A news conference at which he linked the recent bombs to prior threats, dating from last fall, demanding money from corporations under "threat of terrorist tactics." Because they all bore similar markings, the original letters, the bombs and the tick missives are believed to have originated from the same source.

In a statement released Friday, the FBI said the ticks sent to the businessmen were accompanied by letters that "stated that the ticks were carriers of ALL THE 10 Britons and three American mercenáries on trial ex-cept Costas Georgiou, who calls himself Tony Callan, hung on Cesner's words as he invoked the people's revolution and at times the prosecutor's own words to save them. With a "plea of clemen-defense. Two London lawyers, following the lead of the American defense team, blamed their government-for not stopping the ac-cused from coming to Angola to fight for money on the losing side in the civil war won by the Soviet-backed Popular Movement over two Western-supportedfac-

"So far as the British government is concerned, it knew what was happening. It bears a heavy responsibility for what happened in this case," said Peter Warburton Jones.

To cries of "death" from spectators and applause by the tribunal's five judges, prosecutor Rui Monteiro earlier demanded death by firing squad for the 13, captured in the last days of the war.

SCOTTISH lawyer Herbert Kerrigan joined Ces-ner in pointing out that the prosecutor had spent three hours and 40 minutes detailing Angola's heroic revolutionary struggle, but only a few mo-ments referring to the actual evidence against the accused."

Arguing that the mercenaries were pawns of their recruiters, who in turn were "the lackeys of powerful international agencies like the CIA," British lawyer Clive Stan-brook argued that "under the rule of law only on the basis of evidence can a man be condemned to death."

Cesner pleaded the Geneva Convention in de-fense and blamed the FBI for allowing Gary Acker, of Sacramento, to sign on.

"If Acker was permitted by the FBI to come it was wrong?" Cesner said in a 75-minute summing up argument. Cesner said an FBI agent called on Acker in connec-tion with his interview on television in Los Angeles with a mercenary recruit-

Muskie-Long row stalls tax-cut vote in manufacturing, 24 per cent in manufacturing, 24 per cent in petroleum, 23 per cent in finances, insurance and

An increasingly bitter dispute between two commit-tee chairmen delayed a Senate vote Friday on extension of individual income tax cuts.

There was no indication when Sen. Russell Long, D-La., chairman of the Finance Committee, would allow a vote on an amend-ment by Sen. Edmund Muskie, D-Maine, chair-man of the Budget Com-

HOWEVER the fight is settled, tax rates are ex-pected to stay the same, at least through the next 12 months.

Several senators took the floor throughout the day to urge Muskie and Long to settle their differences and let the Senate get down to the substantive issues in a massive tax revision bill written by the Finance Committee.

'We are becoming the laughing stock of this nation," said Sen. John Pastore, D-R.I., noting the Senate has been on the big tax bill for three days without settling a single issue.

At the center of the dispute between the two powerful chairmen is the authority of their commit-

The Finance Committee has had exclusive Senate jurisdiction over tax bills since Congress was founded. Muskie contends a new budget law allows his Budget Committee to have a hand in developing overall tax policy.

Thus, Musicle contends, when Congress last month approved a budget for 1977, it accepted the Budget Committee recommen-dation that the full pack-

WASHINGTON (AP) - age of antirecession tax cuts enacted last year be extended through all of fis-cal 1977 and that $2 billion worth of tax loopholes for the wealthy be closed.

LONG'S committee considered both recommenda-tions not binding and rejected them. It voted a 12month - rather than 15month — tax-cut extension and shut off only $1 billion worth of loopholes.

Long first demanded that the Senate settle the question of which committee was right, but after two days of debate concluded that he had won without the need of a vote.

Muskie took control of the battle Thursday night by offering an amendment that would extend the full tax cut for the full 15 months his committee recommended.

Long conceded that in an election year it would be next to impossible to defeat Muskie's amendment. Stalling in an effort to sway some senators. Long cautioned his colleagues not to hold their breath while waiting for a vote on Muskie's proposal.

EARLIER in the day, a possible way out of the impasse was defeated.

Sen. William Roth, R-Del., a member of the Finance Committee, attempted to get the Senate to order a $1.8-billion cut in federal spending to offset the cost of extending the fax cut the extra three months sought by Muskie.

In the parliamentary briar-patch that followed, Roth lost on a 46-34 vote. The Senate adjourned until Monday without set-tling the dispute.

THE REPORT said that by industry, foreign direct investment was distribreal estate; 16 per cent in wholesale trade and 6 per cent in all other industries combined. European countries accounted for over half of the investments, while Canada had one-fifth. The report had, no specific estimates for the oil-exporting Arab nations, but the Middle East nations as a whole accounted for a relatively small 6.8 per cent overall investment in the United States.

MIA team shifted to Hawaii from Thailand

A congressional panel has been told that the Joint Casualty Resolution Center, the last military unit searching for Americans missing in action in Indo-china, has been brought to Hawaii from Thailand.

The unit will retain a skeleton staff, Roger Shields, deputy assistant defense secretary for international security affairs, said in testimony Thursday to the House Se-
